Two-Year Pact Approved 191-78

County CSEA Ratifies Contract

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Civil Service Employees Association (UCCSEA) Wednesday night ratified by a 191-78 vote a new two year contract with Ulster County.

The vote was announced following a two hour meeting in the auditorium of George Washington School which was closed to news media. Estimates of attendance ranged from 300 upwards, with the lower vote total attributed to employes who had to leave for work before the vote was taken.

Thomas Phillips, UCCSEA director and head of its negotiating team, said county employes had "in general come up with a pretty fair contact, in view of the overall economic picture."

The county's contract offer was presented by directors without any recommendation for its acceptance. Phillips said directors could not make any recommendation because "they felt it discriminated against older employes and against those working in the county office building," but gave no details of specific items he felt were discriminatory.

Phillips said that because of an agreement with county officials he could not disclose contents of the new contract until it is approved by the Ulster County Legislature.

However, The Freeman learned that the new pact, retroactive ot Jan. 1, establishes new minimum salaries ranging upward from $5,000 for Grade 1 to $15,692 for Grade 22. A general wage increase of 11 per cent will be added to these for 1975. Employes covered by hourly rate schedules receive a 13.5 percent increase for 1975.

Equity adjustments ranging from zero for Grade 1 up to $594 for the top 15 grades are added on for 1976, with a general increase added to that, to be based on the U.S. Bureau of Labor's Cost of Living Index. The increase cannot be less than seven nor more than 10 percent, however. Hourly wage rates will be adjusted also by the cost of living factor in 1976.

Employes lose their shorter summer hours under the new contract. In the past the normal 9-5 work day was curtailed during July and August, with employes dismissed at 4 p.m. The new contract calls for offices to be open 9-5 Monday through Friday, 12 months a year, except for legal holidays.

Other provisions of the new contract:

• Employes driving their own vehicles on county business receive 15 cents a mile in 1975, with a reopener clause for a possible increase in 1976.

• Maximum daily meal allowances for employes traveling on county business will be $2 for breakfast, $3 for lunch, and $7 for dinner.

• Employes will not be required to provide physician's statements for absences of less than three days.

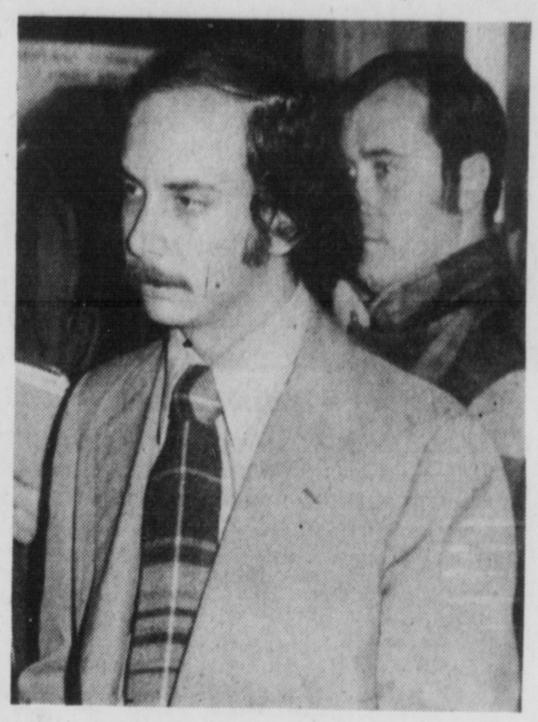

• The county will continue to participate in the Blue Cross-Blue Shield major medical and health insurance programs, paying 100 per cent of individual and 90 per cent of dependent premiums.

• Employes get three days off for deaths in the immediate family.

• All references or provisions in the previous contract relating to deputy sheriffs shall be deleted from the new agreement.

• Employes required to work on holidays will be paid at overtime rates and in addition will be given commensurate time off.

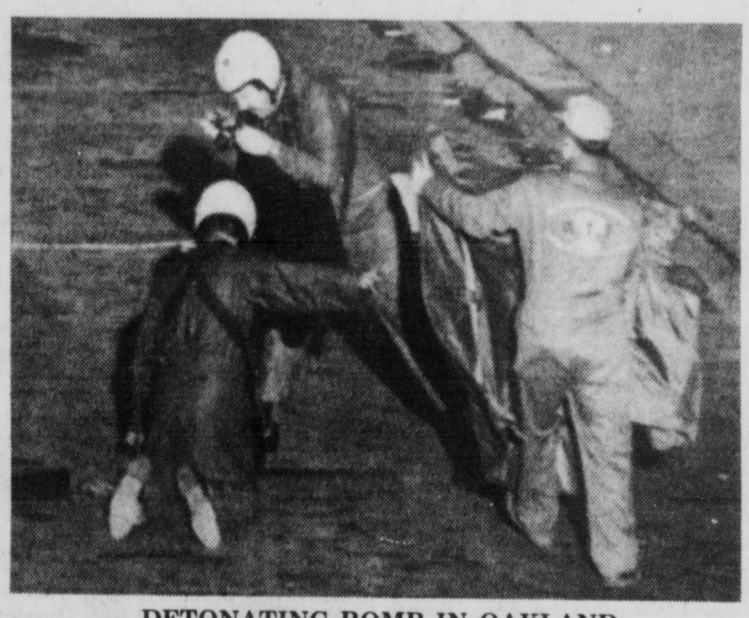

• Health personnel legally required to wear uniforms on the job will receive a $75 annual allowance.

SCENE AFTER WASHINGTON EXPLOSION

DETONATING BOMB IN OAKLAND

Weathermen In Action Once Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The voice of the "Weather Underground," practically unheard in recent years, has spoken again with explosive force.

A bomb went off early Wednesday in a State Department bathroom. Another was found in the ceiling of the military induction center in Oakland, Calif., and exploded by police. The "Weather Underground" took credit for both. No injuries were reported.

The explosions produced a series of bomb scares that disrupted official Washington all day Wednesday.

"Tonight we attack AID in the State Department in Washington and the Department of Defense in Oakland," said a letter signed by the Weather Underground. It contained a rambling denunciation of continued U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia.

The bombers, it said, acted "in solidarity with the peoples of Vietnam and Cambodia and with millions in the United States.

The FBI said the bomb was planted in a women's rest room on the third floor of the State Department, near the offices of the Agency for International Development. The blast collapsed walls, shattered windows, dislodged ceiling tiles and ruptured water pipes, but did not make enough noise to be heard by the building's night crew.

A Washington policeman, Charles Lightner, called it "a damn big bomb ... not one of those blow-the-lid-off things." A State Department spokesman, Paul Hare, said Secretary Henry Kissinger was relieved there were no injuries in "this totally senseless act."

In Oakland, bomb experts found 14 sticks of dynamite in a briefcase, hidden in the ceiling of a seventh floor room. It was dragged outside and exploded, shattering a few windows. The FBI said the bombers had the same method of operation as those in Washington.

"It appears it was the same group," said agent Charles Bates. "This is the Weather Underground."

FBI Director Clarence Kelley said the group included a number on the wanted list: Bernadine Dohrn, Jeffrey Jones, Mark Rudd, Kathie Boudin, Robert Roth, Cathlyn Wilkerson, Leonard Handelsman and Howard Machtinger. The group broke off with the Students for a Democratic Society, saying the time for revolution in the United States was now.

Slain Florida Fugitive May Be Napanoch Suspect

By MATT SPIRENG

ELLENVILLE

A Florida fugitive killed last month in Georgia following a cross-country spree of murders which claimed at least 20 lives—and perhaps nearly twice that number—has become a "very strong" suspect in the grisly killing of a 16-year-old Napanoch girl last October, the Freeman has learned.

Whether Paul John Knowles, 28, whose trail of murders has reached from Connecticut to Florida to Nevada, slit the throat of Diana L. Schoonmaker on Oct. 17 and then dumped her body in the Ellenville landfill site remains to be proven. But state police BCI investigators are "looking at him real hard" as the possible killer.

"We know he passed through this area probably within 24 hours of the death," said Senior BCI Investigator Edward W. Whalen. "But we can't say because he was here he was involved. Whoever was involved, we have to prove it."

It is known that Knowles, who escaped from Florida prior to his coast-to-coast killing spree, was in Marlborough, Conn. (near Hartford) last Oct. 16. On that date he killed Mrs. Karen Wine, 35, and her 15-year-old daughter, Dawn.

On Oct. 18, the day Diana Schoonmaker's body was discovered by a worker at the Ellenville landfill site, Knowles was reportedly in Georgia, having passed through New York State on his way from Connecticut. Did he take the time in Ulster County to add one more to the long, and perhaps never-to-be fully determined list of his murder victims?

Certainly, on Oct. 19 he took the trouble to travel to Virginia, where he shot and killed a housewife.

And before and after those dates—prior to his arrest in Georgia in November—Knowles took the trouble to snuff out at least 17 other lives in widespread parts of the nation.

Following his arrest, Knowles described 14 murders he had committed in eight states. Further evidence since uncovered has lead to Knowles being identified as the killer in six other murders.

PAUL KNOWLES

And Knowles' lawyer has told authorities that his client told him he killed about 35 people before his capture. The trouble was that there were so many he could not remember them all. Knowles is dead now, killed in a December escape attempt.

And so Knowles has become a suspect in the killing of Diana Schoonmaker. But he is not the first suspect in the killing, and he may not be the last.

Whalen said investigators had two other "strong suspects" during their investigation, but they have since been ruled out.

Not a day has gone by since the October murder without at least one investigator has been working full time in the attempt to come up with Miss Schoonmaker's killer, Whalen said. The investigation has reached into New Mexico, Georgia, Florida and New Jersey, among other states.

SUSPECT IN POLICE CUSTODY (UPI)

President, Wilson Pledge Economic Unity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson said in their first meeting today the two countries must ally against world economic crisis as they did in two world wars against military foes.

Ford, who greeted Wilson in a sunny, windswept ceremony on the White House lawn, said The United States "and our oldest ally" now face a "new challenge."

The United States alone, he said, cannot defeat the global problems of inflation, recession and energy shortage.

"What is at stake is the future of industrialized democracy," the President added.

Wilson said his talks with Ford today and Friday would be aimed at helping safeguard "the jobs and living standards of the millions of families we are here to serve."

He added that Britain and the United States must continue to work for economic victory as they did military victory "as friends, as partners, as allies."

Wilson, the wind blowing his silver hair, raised a hand and spoke of "this new and menacing world economic crisis." He said it is not just a matter of harmony in financial and other economic institutions.

Meanwhile, Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns indicated today there will be no immediate, massive easing of federal credit to aid the staggering American economy.

"As long as I am chairman, we will not release a new wave of inflation on this country," he told the House Ways and Means Committee in its hearings on proposed income tax cuts.

Burns promised to continue moderate expansion of the money supply and bank credit despite expected huge federal deficits over the next two years. And he said he supported income and corporate tax cuts over the short run.

The board controls the nation's money supply. It has come under heavy criticism in recent years for maintaining a tight money supply —leading to high interest rates —in an effort to control inflation.

"You can expect an effort to expand at a moderate rate the supply of money and bank credit," Burns said in answer to a question from Committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., on the board's plans in light of a possible $100 million federal deficit over the next two years.

Burns also promised that the Fed would not allow a credit crunch to hit the country in which loans would be impossible to get.

Visit Costs Man His Life

NEW YORK (UPI) — The simple gesture of visiting a sick cousin in the hospital cost Frank Walker his life.

Walker, 28, was walking through a hospital corridor Wednesday after seeing his cousin. Suddenly he heard a gunshot.

He glanced down the hall and saw a policeman crumple to the floor, a bullet wound in his chest. Standing over the wounded officer, holding a smoking gun, was a slight, scar-faced youth in a hospital robe.

Walker, a cripple, struggled with the policeman's assailant, but the youth broke loose

He shot Walker twice, once in the chest and once in the abdomen.

Walker, whose wife was killed in the traffic accident that crippled him a year ago, died on a St. Vincent's Hospital operating table three hours later. He left six children, aged 6 to 12.

The wounded officer, John DiCembre, 33, was in stable condition early today after major surgery. He had been guarding 19-year-old patient Raymond Tubar, and police arrested Tubar in another part of the hospital and charged him with murder.

Mayor Abraham Beame said he was deeply shocked by Walker's death and called him "a heroic civilian who came to the defense of a policeman under attack."

"His unselfish deed, which cost him his life, places us all in his debt," Beame said.

Tubar had been in the hospital since Jan. 21, recovering from a gunshot wound above the eye. He had been wounded by police, who arrested him because he clubbed two passersby on a busy Greenwich Village street for no apparent reason and then chased officers with the club.

Authorities ordered a psychiatric examination of Tubar.

Police say the youth grabbed DiCembre's gun during a trip to the men's room.

A short time before the shooting, Walker, who had gone to the hospital with his father, his uncle and two cousins to visit a sick cousin on the fifth floor, excused himself to go to the nearest men's room, located on the fourth floor.

Ex-CIA Chief Visits Movie Set

Perched on directors' chairs, former Central Intelligence Agency Chief Richard Helms (L) and actor Robert Redford are warmly clothed against chilling breezes coming off the East River. At the invitation of a mutual friend, Helms was visiting the movie set on Ward's Island In New York where Redford, playing a CIA agent, was filming a scene for the movie "Three Days of the Condor," A Dino LeLaurentiis production. No clues were given concerning what the once and would-be spies discussed. "At this point in time," Redford said, "we are not at liberty to divulge the details." (UPI)

Conservation Department Being Considered

KINGSTON

Consideration is being given to the establishment of an Ulster County Department of Conservation, according to C. Freeman Lasher (R-Dist. 1), chairman of the legislature's conservation committee.

In a January report of the work of the committee, Lasher indicates that "there is a possibility that some time in the future, part of hunting and fishing license money might be returned from the state and federal governments to be used for maintaining the department.

Fred Faerber, president of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County, said that federal money to employ persons in the field of conservation has already been made available to Ulster County through manpower programs and that more than 20 persons are now employed here in that capacity.

He envisions that with the manpower start the federal government has given the county, that the county could conceivably begin planning for the establishment of a conservation office and the continuance of the program.

Faerber suggests that if part of the money realized from the sale of 3,000 or more hunting and fishing licenses sold in the county each year could be returned to the county, that there would be sufficient money to maintain a conservation office.

He estimates that sportsmen in the county spend $8 million annually to support their sporting activities, averaging $150 to $200 a year each.

The Conservation Office would be responsible for supervision of the cleaning of streams, the prevention of flood damage, the creation of deer habitats and numerous other conservation projects.

Faerber told of "millions of conservation dollars allocated and tied up" in federal and state bureaucracies which should be returned to the counties. Instead, he suggested the funds are apt to be retained by such agencies as the Department of Conservation, which he said supplies conservation expertise but little in the way of concrete conservation accomplishments in the county.

The legislature's conservation committee will study the proposal further.

Operations Committee Established

TOWN OF ULSTER

"Deep concern that the taxpaying public is loosing control of the government it finances," has prompted the Town of Ulster Democratic Committee to establish a "Select Committee on Town Government Operations" to study town government and offer suggestions and recommendations aimed at improving efficiency and effectiveness.

In announcing the formation of a five- to nine-member committee, Democratic Town Chairman Kenneth Dargis indicated that taxpayers have been asking questions about:

• the use of "hidden funds" to finance a ew town office building.

• the high cost overruns associated with the ew Town of Ulster Sewer District.

• the skyrocketing town highway budget.

The Town of Ulster Democratic Committee's decision to establish the Select Committee came in the form of a resolution which Dargis called a positive response to the many inquiries the Democratic Committee has received from the public.

"It is not our desire to be obstructionists," he said. "However, it is our desire to insure that each tax dollar is spent efficiently with the ultimate goal of improving town services without adding new taxes to the already overburdened taxpayer," he concluded.

The committee selected Saturday, April 12 as the date for its annual dinner dance to be held at the Walnut Grove in Kingston. Details of the dinner plans will be announced, as will the names of those who will serve the Select Committee.

'Had to Make the Best of It With the Mice and Roaches'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A former patient of a Manhattan nursing home said he didn't complain about the mice and roaches in his room because he was alone and had "to make the best of it." Another said he was beaten with fist and shoe when he made a fuss about noise from the staff.

The two men testified at a public hearing Wednesday where reports of widespread squalor and abuse of the elderly in state nursing homes emerged.

One doctor who treated patients at the now defunct Towers Nursing Home in New York said their stories were not of isolated incidents.

Patient John Bogner told the state Temporary Commission on Living Costs there were mice and cockroaches in his room at the Towers. Bogner, 80, a retired painter's helper, said he never complained.

"I thought 'I'm alone, I have nobody to help me and I just have to make the best of it.' I thought 'I'm an old man and I only have a few years left and then I go six feet under and forget about Towers'."

In his two years at the nursing home, Bogner said he had read it cost $15,000 a year to maintain a patient in a nursing home. "I thought, my lord, what's worth $15,000 at Towers?"

"There was too much noise by the people who worked there and they pushed you out of bed if you didn't want to get up," said 58-year-old Geronimo Rivera, a former tailor who spoke through a translator.

"When I asked them not to make so much noise, a nurse named Miss Penn came and hit me with her fist and a shoe on the head and chest."

The home was closed last month by Health Department inspectors and its residents transferred to other homes. The Towers' owner, Bernard Bergman, is the central figure in more than a dozen federal, state and local investigations of the nursing home industry.

Dr. Isa Goldman, chief resident at Coney Island Hospital, said the experiences of the two former Towers' residents were not isolated cases.

Nursing home transfer patients admitted to the hospital were "by and large a disaster medically," Goldman said.

Typically, he said, they were "incoherent, many times comatose, dehydrated, infected and riddled with bedsores."

CSEA Group Supports Feraca Sr.

NEW ROCHELLE

"The Southern Region of the Civil Service Employees Association (CSEA) has added its support to the citizens demanding the reinstatement of Joseph Feraca Sr. to the Town of Esopus police force," according to James J. Lennon, president of the 40,000-member unit coverig seven Hudson Valley counties.

"Feraca has an impeccable record of good citizenship," Lennon said. "In addition to his 17 years experience on the force, he is a leader in the community and is widely admired by the people in the area. It seems awfully suspicious that he was suddenly thrown off the force with no explanation to the public, even though an explanation was demanded.

"Feraca is president of the CSEA unit for Kingston City Schools Consolidated and is head security officer at Kingston High School. During his 17 years on the town police force, Feraca founded the Ulster County Constables Association to insure adequate training for all constables. He also founded the Rifton Youth Club to provide recreation and educational programs for the boys and girls of the area, and also was a fire police captain for 14 years. He is a member of the county safety council.

"Now the town board mysteriously appoints every single incumbent on the police force except Feraca. What are they trying to hide? Why are they afraid of Joe Feraca?

"CSEA is proud to join the citizens of Ulster County in demanding his reinstatement, especially since the town board refuses to reveal the reason why they failed to reappoint him. It's about time the board stopped regarding town government as their private clubhouse."

Warning Made by Nixon's Price Czar

Feels Return to Old Price Controls Would Be Disastrous

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — C. Jackson Grayson, who headed the Nixon administration's price control effort, said Wednesday that return to such controls "would be disastrous" to the U.S. economy.

He said that inflation would continue, and predicted that by the end of the year there would be new pressure for controls, warning against giving in to it.

"Controls breed controls. This is a dangerous trend ... toward more government regulation and intervention," Grayson said in a speech to 3,000 delegates to a meeting of the American National Cattleman's Association.

Grayson was chairman of the commission that controlled prices during the Nixon administration's "Phase II" program.

"I hate to admit it, but we had on the boards controls on the return of investment," Grayson said. "The worst would be broad comprehensive controls on prices, wages, dividends, rents and even farm and cattle products.

"That would be disastrous to the free enterprise economy," he said.

Grayson, Dean of the Southern Methodist University business school in Dallas, said he took the job of "price control czar" only because he was afraid that if he did not, the job would go to someone who believed in controls and would try to perpetruate them.

"Government interference in the economy is not the solution," he said.

He pointed to housing problems in New York and Paris as the results of controls on rents, and said federal price controls for years on natural gas have created dislocations and shortages now because buyers consumed large amounts of gas at artificially low prices, while producers had no incentive to find more.

Politicians make the wrong decisions on economic policies without the pressures of supply and demand, he said.

"We have taken control from the market place and put it in the halls of debate of the politicians."

He warned against "planned societies," saying the U.S. government is on the road to managing the economy like a public utility.

"This society is planned by the consumers," he said. "They plan it by voting in the market place and that is far from free. Watch out for that word 'planning.'"

Rocky Called Recipient of CIA Services

TORONTO (UPI) — Former Central Intelligence Agency officer Philip Agee, author of a controversial book attacking the spy agency, today called Vice President Nelson Rockefeller a "recipient of CIA services"

Agee said the commission Rockefeller heads to investigate the organization probably will find little fault with it.

He also accused AFL-CIO President George Meany of being a CIA "collaborator."

Agee 39, was interviewed on NBC-TV's "Tomorrow" show, in Toronto because he does not want to return to the United States before his book appears here. It was published in London Jan. 2. He now lives in Cornwall, England.

He said the Creole Petroleum Co. in Caracas, Venezuela, routinely turned over the names of prospective employes to CIA operatives in that country for political "clearance."

Creole, he said, is a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey, which he said was partly controlled by the Rockefeller family.

"Rockefeller and his family were thus recipients of CIA services," Agee said. "He (Rockefeller) is compromised from the start. Don't expect anything from that commission."

He also said the CIA often has provided Rockefeller "with biographical data on the people he is going to meet" on trips abroad.

Agee, author of "Inside the Company: CIA Diary," a 640page book detailing his career with the CIA, said Meany "served as a collaborator" of the CIA.

For example, he said, "Mr. Meany went in as the chief" of the American Institute for Free Labor Development, which he said was a CIA-inspired organization based in Washington with branches in Latin America.

"Don't get the idea he was working as a puppet for the CIA," Agee told Tomorrow host Tom Snyder. "There's a community of interest there."

He called the CIA "nothing more than the secret political" arm of U.S. corporations.

"The book is an attempt to weaken the agency," he said. "But it's only a start. I'm now working with other Americans to identify and expose CIA agents around the world."

Agee joined the CIA in 1959 and worked in Ecuador, Uruguay and Mexico before quitting in 1968 —partly, he said, because he realized he was indirectly responsible for the torture of a Uruguayan leftist.

Filmland Interested in Love Affair

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A movie producer wants to get the illegitimate daughter of an American admiral and a Russian movie star to play her own mother in a film version of their World War II romance — if the Soviet government will cooperate.

Producer Jack Cummings said Wednesday he is campaigning to get entertainment industry figures to wire or write the Soviet government, pleading for an exit visa for Victoria Fyodorova, 29, now a leading Russian movie actress.

Cummings said he was an old friend of retired Adm. Jackson Tate, Miss Fyodorova's father, and is representing the naval officer in any movie deals involving the story. Tate, who lives in Orange Park, Fla., confirmed the arrangement with Cummings.

Tate, now 77, and Miss Fyodorova are trying to arrange for her to come to the United States to meet him, but the Soviet Government has refused to allow her to leave the country.

Miss Fyodorova, a green-eyed brunette, was the result of a romance in the closing months of World War II between Tate, then a captain assigned as naval attache to the U.S. embassy in Moscow, and Zoya Fyodorova, then a leading Russian Actress. She was named Victoria, her mother said, because she was conceived on VE day.

The Stalin government disapproved of the affair, ordered Tate out of the country and sent Miss Fyodorova to a labor camp for eight years. Tate only recently discovered he had a daughter.

Cummings, nephew of the late Louis B. Mayer and producer of a number of films including "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" and "Teahouse of the August Moon," said he has known Tate since the 1930s and his life and romance would make a good movie.

"Jack Tate is a smashing hero, you know," he said. "He entered the Navy as a seaman second class and retired as an admiral, which is a hell of a story in itself. I knew about the affair with the Russian actress but not about the child."

"I'm working with a couple of studios right now" on a projected film, Cummings said. "The episode with Zoya certainly is romantic," he said, and in addition there may be "some cloak and dagger elements" for a movie script. "The story has everything going for it —war, espionage, great states and all the rest."

A Reversal on Stamps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Within a week, Congress will pass a bill which would nullify an Agriculture Deparment order to slash food stamp benefits, Rep. Peter A. Peyser, R-N.Y., predicted today.

Peyser told UPI that contrary to earlier forecasts, he believes President Ford will agree to sign the bill. He is a member of the House Agriculture Committee which made its first business this year at today's hearing on the legislation. Peyer said he expected the bill to get easy approval.

At present, needy families use about 23 per cent of their net income to buy food stamps. The stamps allow them to get food at reduced prices. An administration budget-cutting measure would increase the stamps to 30 per cent of income —which critics say would put them beyond the reach of many families.

WOODSTOCK'S RECYCLING CENTER TAKES SHAPE ON ROCK CITY ROAD SITE

Permanent Recycling Center Set to Open in Woodstock

By TIM SCHUSTER

WOODSTOCK

A year of behind the scenes work by members of Woodstock's Conservative Commission will hopefully result in the debut of a permanent recycling center next month.

Greg Gebert, chairman of the town-appointed volunteer commission, was enthusiastic about the prospects for the new site, located on the former St. Joan of Arc Church property next to the Andy Lee Recreation Field on Rock City Road.

He was of the opinion that "everyone involved will benefit," and is in the process of coordinating volunteer help to man the glass chrushing machines and organize the materials.

"We have been encouraged by community response in past recycling drives," he commented. "We felt we had a duty to try this."

The town is footing the bill for construction of a shed, which is expected to be completed in a few weeks, but other than the fact that it is town-owned property the rest of the project will be given over to volunteers.

Gebert said that a plan is being worked out whereby Family, the non-profit community help group in Woodstock, can man the center "three of four days a week" and reap whatever profits might be realized through the sale of the disposable trash.

"I realize the market is depressed," he said regarding sales of paper, glass, and aluminum. But traditional channels of selling the recyclable materials will be followed. "We believe in recycling," he added.

As far as placing the three materials on the site, Gebert said that will probably be open "continuously." People will have to bring their own recyclables to the center, and no provisions have been made to have collectors in town contribute their trash. Items will have to be separated.

The site itself, according to Town Supervisor Vern May, consists of the shed surrounded by fencing. The glass crushing machines have been acquired through donations to the town and town purchases.

He noted that the project of building a permanent center for recycling was originally proposed by the town's Environmental Commission, and that it has carried through with the idea with town encouragement for the past year.

And while May expressed doubt that the center would engender much in the way of monetary profits, he affirmed his faith in the idea as being of benefit to everyone in the town.

Barclay Site Provides Center for BOCES

MOWRY (LEFT) AND ARONICA REVIEW PLANS

NEW BOCES FACILITY AWAITS RENOVATION
(Freeman photos)

By CARL GRAHAM

PORT EWEN

Ulster County students in BOCES vocational programs will be bused to a new location in Port Ewen when the 1975-76 school year begins in September.

Approval by the State Education Department on Jan. 21 gave the green light to a five-year lease on the Barclay Knitwear building and to plans for its renovation into a consolidated center for BOCES vocational classes now scattered in six locations throughout the county.

"Our basic plan," according to Vocational Education Director Michael Aronica, "is to continue our present programs, oriented to the job market and to the demands from the component districts."

The one-story buff brick building, erected in 1959, housed the Barclay Knitwear warehouse and distribution center and furnished employment for about 150 persons until the firm consolidated its corporate operations in Connecticut last year.

Under terms of the lease the owner, Port Ewen Realty Company, will make the renovations necessary to convert the 90,000-square-foot structural steel building into a classroom facility. Renovation begins March 1 and must be completed by Sept. 1. Plans for the conversion were drawn by James Mowry of Mowry Architectural Associates of Binghamton.

Mowry said that a team of architects and engineers from the State Department of Education had inspected the building and reviewed conversion plans prior to approval by the state agency.

"The building and its ystems meet all state requirements," Mowry noted.

Several features make the building suitable for conversion to a classroom facility. Located east of Route 9W across from Farmer's Market, it is surrounded by an eight-foot chain link fence. A paved paring lot provides space for bus loading and unloading and another crushed stone parking lot provides parking for about 50 cars south of the building.

The floor plan calls for 27 classrooms, shops and laboratories. Rooms around the perimeter, each with its own door to the outside, will be used by classes needing exhaust facilities for dust, motor exhaust, and other byproducts. An access corridor separates them from an inner core of laboratories. Air conditioning is adequate to meet state standards for classrooms without outside access, Mowry noted.

An overhead door will serve building trades classes at the northwest corner and three other ramps at the southwest corner will be used by automotive repair classes. The interior is lighted by long banks of fluorescent fixtures.

The building sits on a seven-acre lot, furnishing space for building trades and other classes for outdoor work. The building is protected by an automatic sprinkler system and the fire alarm is tied in to the nearby Port Ewen Fire Department.

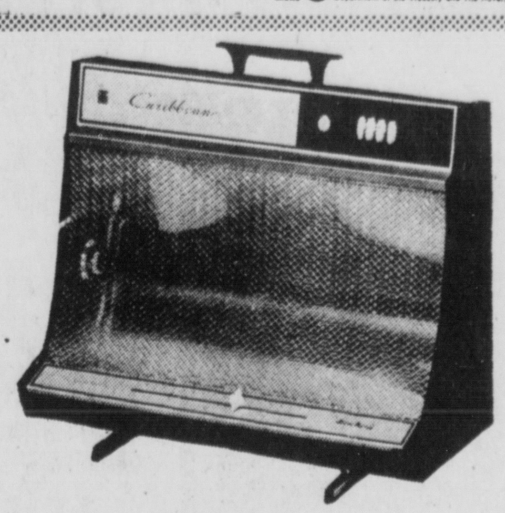

BOCES presently has 64,000 square feet of classroom space at the King, Millard, Ramsey and Ruzzo buildings in Kingston, at Kingston Hospital, and at its facility on Route 32 north of New Paltz. All classrooms will be moved to Port Ewen, with the vacated space at New Paltz being converted to furnish additional office space for the administrative staff.

The increase to 90,000 square feet will not mean any increase in the number of BOCES programs or classes, Aronica said, although it will alleviate an existing space problem. The new classrooms at Port Ewen will meet all state standards for size, a condition that does not exist at some of the present facilities.

Making for Bigger Wars

Over the years and the generations, incalculable harm has been wrought in the name of maintaining a military balance in this or that part of the world. By gift or sale, big powers supply arms to small powers, the presumed result being that none of the potential adversaries in a given region will gain any marked advantage over the others.

The theory advanced to justify this custom is that such a balance of combat capability discourages war. In the short run, that may be true. In the longer run, the outcome is that when war does occur it is fought with more — and more sophisticated and destructive — weapons than would otherwise be the case. The level of death and havoc is escalated.

A distrubing illustration of this phenomenon is seen these days in the Middle East. Over the past year the Soviet Union has provided short-range ballistic missiles, capable of carrying nuclear warheads, to Syria and perhaps to Egypt as well. Now Congress has been informed by the Pentagon that it plans to sell some 200 Lance missiles, similar in nature, to Israel.

These missiles are only the latest addition to a vast array of arms — around two billion dollars' worth — that Israel has received from the United States in the past year. Meanwhile, the Arab countries have been getting arms from the Soviet Union. In consequence, according to the Department of Defense, there is a general military balance between the Arab powers and Israel.

Is that a good thing? Is this supposed equality of the power to kill and destroy making war less likely in the Middle East? Perhaps so, but it is hard to be sure. One thing is certain: with the superpowers acting as military supply agents, if war breaks out again between the Arabs and Israelis both sides will be marvellously well equipped to spread havoc and devastation.

Farm Land Prices

Quite a lot of the world's farm land is in the state of Iowa. This lends special interest to figures on the value of the state's land compiled by Iowa State University.

A survey by university economists shows that the average value of an acre of Iowa farm land has doubled in the past five years. The average now stands at the all-time high of $756. In 16 of the state's 99 counties, average land values now exceed $1,000 per acre. The statewde average went up 32 per cent in 1973 and another 31 per cent last year.

Though inflation has played a part in this, it is by no means the most important factor in the increases. The reason most frequently mentioned by real estate brokers questioned in the survey was high prices for crops. This in turn has stimulated brisk demand for farm acreage.

One facet of this is the desire to enlarge a farming unit. This is a continuation of a phenomenon seen throughout the Midwest farming region in recent years; the size of farms has steadily risen as both family and corporate farmers sought to take advantage of more efficient large-scale farming methods.

Land as an investment also attracted buyers, mainly non-farmers. Brokers also said the scarcity of listings was a factor in pushing prices up, and finally they cited inflationary pressures. In this connection it is noteworthy that more People seem to have become interested in land as a hedge against inflation. Whatever the reasons, farm land is selling at premium prices these days.

Saving the Porpoise

The porpoise has won a special place in the hearts of those who yearn to safety toward wildlife against man's depradations. Reports of these creatures' intelligence, and of qualities that seem almost human in some respects, make it all the more worrisome that in recnt years hundreds of thousands have died in the nets of the tuna fleets.

The National Marine Fisheries Service has been working intensively to develop ways of reducing this toll. It is heartening to learn that this effort has begun to pay off. After several years with a death count of around 200,000 annually, last year's toll dwindled to 117,000. The agency estimates that during 1975 that figure will be cut in half.

The measures divised impose some cost on tuna fishermen, but the burden is not excessive. With a sharp downward trend in porpoise deaths established, one can anticipate a time when few are needlessly killed.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

The Secret Life of H. L. Hunt

WASHINGTON—H. L. Hunt, the eccentric oil billionaire, kept a tight lock during his life on a Pandora's box. When he died a few weeks ago at age 85, the lid was lifted for us. What we found, attested to in a suppressed court document, is an incredible tale of bribery, infidelity, corruption, tax cheating, political manipulation and worse.

The charges were brought by two of the old tycoon's closest associates —his former personal assistant, John Curington, and trusted corporate aide John Brown.

Both have now been indicted for allegedly siphoning off funds from the Hunt empire. But their charges, made jointly under oath, shouldn't be dismissed without an investigation.

Haroldson Lafayette Hunt was a crusty curmudgeon, who liked to boast he was "the richest man in the world" but who had a reputation as a skinflint. He packed his lunch to his office in a brown paper sack and spread whole wheat sandwiches and dried prunes on his desk, using the Wall Street Journal for a tablecloth.

But the secret life of the oil billionaire, according to Curington and Brown, was a different story. They portray him as a big-stakes gambler who squandered money to gratify his hates. Among his victims were some of the biggest names in American politics.

The story was buried in the legal filings of a 1970 lawsuit. After Curington and Brown made their charges, the suit was settled and the sworn state ments were withdrawn. But we have obtained copies of the suppressed material. Among the allegations are these:

—That Hunt "spent huge sums of cash " to mail out" an attack on John F. Kennedy and the Roman Catholic Church."

—That Hunt furnished cash to "a leading anti-Semitic propagandist . . . with instructions for the funds to be used to create an unfavorable image for Jews."

—That the oilman "spent large sums of cash" to defeat the late Lyndon Johnson, Sens. Hubert Humphrey, D.-Minn., William Fulbright, D.-Ark., and Alan Cranston, D.-Calif. The document charges Hunt's corporate funds and employes were used for political purposes.

—That Hunt cash went to Richard Nixon. This secret financing it has been reported elsewhere, helped to put Nixon into the vice presidency in 1952.

—That Hunt money was behind the George Wallace-Curtis LeMay third-party ticket in 1968. One estimate puts the Hunt contribution at $1 million.

—That Hunt had a "confidential and clandestine transaction" with Federal Communications Commisssioner Robert E. Lee. In other testimony, a lawyer quotes Curington as saying Hunt rewarded the commissioner for helping with his right-wing Life Line broadcasts. Lee acknowledged that he and Hunt were "pretty good friends" and that Hunt frequently called him once about employes for Life Line. But Lee said all he ever got from Hunt was a quart of pecans one Christmas. "There were no business dealings," said the FCC commissioner.

—That Hunt once admitted he had "stolen in excess of $8 million from himself," using Swiss bank accouhts. He allegedly told the tax collectors he lost it gambling.

—That the billionaire used his employes to try to collect an $800,000 gambling debt from a Nevada casino owner, then used employes to protect him "from notorious gambler Frank Erickson, who claimed H. L. Hunt owed him $430,000." Hunt once claimed he bet $125,000 with Erickson on a single football game.

—That Hunt's employes were required to recruit women to travel with him, to explain away his infidelities and to straighten out a scandal involving a relative and a prominent Texas matron.

—That Hunt sold food from his HLH product line "unfit for human consumption, knowing that such sales would end up in Negro and low-income areas."

—That Hunt used illegal Mexican labor at his "Indian Hot Springs Resort in Hudspeth County, Texas" and diverted company funds to the private use of his family.

—That Hunt made "gifts to public officials in return for favors." He allegedly also charged off as company expenses favor-currying gifts to both Arab and Jewish groups.

A Hunt spokesman pointed to Curington and Brown's current indictment as argument that they couldn't be trusted to tell the truth about the Hunts. The spokesman contended their accusations were untrue and should be classified as "smut."

But the detailed charges are part of the Texas Watergate scandal that has entangled many of the oil curmudgeon's survivors.

Notes From London

In London the other day, one of the large television companies held its annual luncheon for the purpose of giving out prizes to journalists who had achieved illustrious accomplishments during the past year. The editors of the Peace News, which is a far-left publication on the order of our Ramparts, were given a prize for discovering that a British colonel had made plans for a citizens' volunteer force in the event of a civil emergency. When the host rose to his feet to offer the customary toast to the Queen, the Peace-persons ostentatiously stayed seated. And when time came for them to accept the award, their spokesman delivered a tirade on the subject of Britain's suppression of a mutiny in the United Kingdom. The combination proved too much — but for only a single member of the audience, the redoubtable Mr. Peregrine Worsthorne of the Sunday Telegraph, who walked out. Everyone else stayed, and even clapped politely.

Oh how Mr. Worsthorne has thundered over the events, and I quite understand. We have our Ja ne Fondas and Marlon Brandos, and we sort of put up with them, but since Vietnam and Wounded Knee, they are no longer proof against an audience's good sense and good manners. Besides which, for all our troubles the English are worse off. Indeed it is here and there suggested, as by Anthony Lejeune, that "some people have begun actually to hope for a catastrophe, because they fear that the only alternative is a continuing steady erosion of the country's economic foundations and of individual liberty."

The Labor Government is meanwhile swaggering about, sustained only by an unaccountable rise in the London stock market (50% in three weeks). The stock market seems to be saying that there will always be an England; and no doubt there will. Last weeek a rich sheik from the United Arab Emirates plunked down 500,000 pounds for a castle in Kent. Asked why he had bought it, he said simply, "Because it's beautiful." Lots of England will continue to be beautiful even after economic and political chaos, so that it becomes literally true that there will always be an England, even as the Court of St. Petersburg could with full confidence in 1914 have warranted that there would always be a Russia.

There is resistance. Sir Keith Joseph, the shadow Home Affairs spokesman, has made a daring suggestion — or rather, as the British would view it, threat. If the Parliament does not restrain itself, "it will nurture its own nemesis." Sir Keith thinks the English should consider moving toward the adoption of a — Bill of Rights.

That would be a startling innovation in Britain, where Parliament has always been supreme. But this is an age of innovation. Prime Minister Harold Wilson is going to take the question of staying in the Common Market to the people next June in an unprecedented plebiscite. The Daily Telegraph suggests that the best formulation of Wilson's referendum would be the following: "Do you, or do you not, agree that we should, or, alternatively, that we should not, remain within the EEC. Answer yes or no. Yes . . . . No . . . ."

But even as 30 years ago, England's plight is bringing out those vast reserves of British eloquence. Mr. Heath has always been studiously prosaic. But — listen: "The hour of the individual patriotic British man and woman is with us. I feel the stirring of a new mood in Britain. I want a Britain that frightens her enemies, delights her friends; a Britain that is fun to live in and exciting to work in; a Britain strong enough to be tolerant and confident enough to be compassionate. If I was alone in what I feel I, too, would begin to lose hope. But I know I am not alone."

That's true. But neither is he a majority.

Nicholas Von Hoffman:

Bringing the Fed Out Into the Open

WASHINGTON—If the Senate's seniority system has set the somnambular John Sparkman to drowsing in the chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee, it may have compensated us by elevating William Proxmire to the same position on the Banking Committee. Although Proxmire is better known for what he grows on his head than what he has in it, the Wisconsin Senator represents the best hope in several generations for changing the way the Federal Reserve Board conducts the nation's monetary policy.

Proxmire says he's going to get Arthur Burns, the Fed's chairman, up before the committee to explain what he's doing and why on a regular and sustaining basis. That may not seem like much unless you appreciate the opaque vapor of unaccountability in which the people who print our money operate.

Ordinarily nobody knows what this agency, with its power to bring the joys of inflation or deflation crashing down on us, is doing until it has already done it. It's harder to know what the Fed is up to, much less control it, than it is to put the clamps on the CIA.

Theoretically at least, once a year the CIA has to come to Congress and get some more money to do whatever it is that it does. If Congress has a mind to, it can use the lever of appropriations to learn whether the creature has been behaving itself.

The Fed doesn't come to Congress for an annual appropriation. It gets the money it needs form the profits it makes from trading in government securities. It's perfectly legal. That's the way the Fed was set up. Most of the profit is turned over to the Treasury, but the process by whic it supports itself encourages a spirit of obdurate independence and willfulness further bolstered by the fact that the terms of the seven members of the board of governors are no less than 14 years each.

The Fed's isolation from public understanding is also helped along by a perfusion of functions and a complexity of operation and organization that taxes the powers of all but the most expert to understand. Thus though the Constitution puts the responsibility for managing the nation's currency on Congress in a very special and specific way, its members have found it easier on their sluggish intellects to let the Fed go its own way.

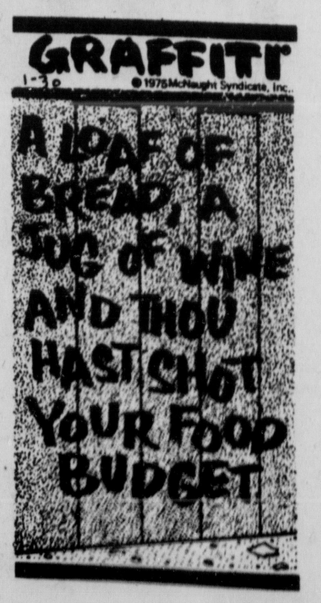

In the 61 years since its creation the Fed's way has been to accrete power. The Fed's way has also been a mistaken way according to the thinking of its large and growing family of critics. Many of them believe that in financial crisis after financial crisis the Fed has unfailingly done the wrong thing because it has usually been dominated by men who are out of touch with the best knowledge of the time.

In the next few months the government is going to have to come up with about $26 billion to cover its expenses and anticipated deficits. How that huge amount will be raised will be determined in no small part by the Fed, and that decision will have much to do with employment, prices and prosperity.

The decision should be made known to Congress beforehand. This is bread on the table and too important to have seven men nobody's ever heard of making the decision almost in secret, while the nation is left guessing until we feel its effects.

Ideally, Congress should make such policy decisions. That would require new legislation and an appreciation of what the Fed does which most members of Congress don't have.

The two New charimen do have it. Whether you agree or disagree with their economics, they have the technical knowledge. If they use it in a series of open and searching committee hearings, they may be able to educate their colleagues and the public. Then, perhaps, the foundations will have been laid to legislatively remodel the monetary policy process.

The Reader Writes

Tax Relief

Editor, the Freeman:

It has been clearly established in our society that the automobile is a vital necessary part of our livelihood used in transporting people to and from work, earn the wherewithal which enables us to provide for our families, and the transportation of the family groceries.

We can clearly see here, that a strong relationship exists between the auto and our food supplies.

Since the basic food we eat is free of the sales tax, why then, because of this existing and accepted fact, are we obliged to pay the sales tax on the auto, or any repair therof? It would appear then, that elimination of this sales tax on new and used cars and their correlated repairs should be called for on the basis of current economic reasons, the gas tax notwithstanding!

Here, by and large, would be a tremendous boost to the economy alleviating to great extent the burden on all families struggling to 'get by', who must depend on their cars in their daily living.

Currently the politicians and economists are seeking all sorts of remedies, after the fact, to improve the economic picture by halting the startling inflationary conditions, or any other name one wants to call them, heading for an all time 'high' in the national debt.

If it's honest-to-goodness tax relief they are after why not try a good home-style remedy, namely tying the family car to the family food budget where it plays an all-important part. Let's begin at the beginning where the tax collector can see the error of his ways.

I have strong feelings regarding the foregoing position of the auto as it applies to the family economy, AT THE SOURCE, so much so that I am directing a copy of this letter to Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey as food for thought, tax free, that is.

I trust there are others who might feel this way, and that certain pressures be instituted in this direction.

Very truly yours,
Robert Lane

Recycling

Editor, The Freeman:

With the growing concern for conserving our natural resources, many people have decided to separate glass, paper, and metal, from their garbage. In our apartment we have a system that is very simple and effective. Three grocery bags are kept in our closet to hold clean paper, glass, and metal cans and jar lids. A small, but nevertheless significant contributuon to conservation. If more people did this, it would be our way of helping to insure the next generation of having enough of these resources. We send the saved articles to the recycling center at Lindsley Avenue, Kingston, New York, every week.

What is needed is a large bin outside our apartment complex and outside other apartment houses and on each street for recycling, to encourage people to separate glass, paper, and metal from garbage. Then people could recycle boxes, wrapping paper, cracker and cereal boxes, and envelopes, metal and glass jars, bottles, and broken glass conveniently. Then they could be picked up by garbage or recycling trucks on different weeks or every few days, each day for a different article. That is, on Monday instead of merely picking up "garbage" to be dumped, the truck could pick up paper to be taken to a recycling center where it would be made into new paper. We must get away from being a "throw away" society if we are to leave anything for our posterity. Let's not wait until a crisis when we have no paper or glass or cans in which to package food and other necessities.

Tons of garbage are polluting the oceans and that means future pollution of the fish to make fish inedible. Write to our Congressmen before it becomes a major problem. And let's work together to keep a small planet alive for our children's children's children.

Food Priorities

Editor, The Freeman:

The current TV fad for coaxing pets to eat in endless commercials is the essence of poor taste in these food-less days for so many of the world's population, in our opinion, and we love cats and dogs. We appreciate seeing these sentiments expressed by Dr. Kenneth Wilson in his editorial in the January issue of CHRISTIAN HERALD — and we quote:

"There is no room in 1975 for a Finicky Cat . . . Which cat and dog food commercials are being shown in your viewing area, I don't know. I do know that I am increasingly uneasy about the ones I'm seeing. What bothers me is how some people would react if they saw them — say a mother in India or Africa holding a starving child to an empty breast. With what fierce anger would she respond to American dog owners being urged to provide the daily egg ration their pet's glossy coat needs? . . .

Dr. Wilson adds that he is indeed a friend to animals, but that it bothers him: to realize that his cat eats better, or at least more regularly, than some of this world's children. The author adds that although his lawn "is the despair of his neighbors" he hears that Americans use enough fertilizer on their lawns and golf courses to make up the fertilizer shortage of India, and that 20 million people a year could be fed with the grain used to produce the alcoholic drinks that slake America's thirst.

"The judgment of the Lord begins at the point closest home and for me that point is my priorities." adds Dr. Wilson, and urges that ". . . we non-farmers could consider paying the going rate and then contributing the grain to needy countries . . ."

He concludes: "Jesus didn't say, "Come, blessed of my Father . . . For I was hungry and you felt bad about it." This exciting year, what are my priorities — and yours — going to be?

Hopefully,
Marianne D. Darrow

Open Letter

Governor Hugh Carey
State Capital
Albany, New York

Dear Governor Carey,

We, the Irate Consumers of Ulster County, wish to express our regret and concern over your apparent lack of interest in the urgent problems we face in meeting our exorbitant electric bills. This situation has become more acute since the Public Service Commission granted its latest rate increase to Central Hudson Gas and Electric Co. and continued to allow the passing through of increased fuel costs to the costomer. The burden upon those on fixed incomes, the elderly, and the poor who are most affected by inflation is particularly intolerable.

We were part of a delegation of three hundred people, representing thirty organizations, which sought to present this problem to you in Albany on January 6th, only to be met by an obscure aide who could furnish no answers to our questions. Yet only two weeks later, you found time to confer with affluent doctors on malpractice insurance.

We have exhausted all legal and administrative procedures in this matter. We have borne the legal expense of a court challenge, and have received no ruling on our complaint to the Public Service Commission on the fuel cost pass-through. Our petition for a re-hearing on the rate increase granted Central Hudson has been denied. Only the governor by exercising his executive power can intervene. In a letter to the Concerned Consumers dated October 28, 1974, Ms. Carol Weiland of your Research Dept. stated upon your behalf,

"Congressman Carey has spoken out against automatic pass-through of utility ompany fuel and operating costs to customers. As governor he would prohibit such pass-throughs without open public hearings with full public representation. In addition, he has advocated complete revamping of the Public Service Commission to allow for greater consumer participation."

We believe this constitutes moral commitment on your part to act immediately, in this matter.

In conclusion we must also make you aware of our complete opposition to the incorporation of a 10 cent per gallon tax on gas. Ulster County is particularly dependent upon the private automobile for transportation, since it lacks any public transportation facilities, and would be most adversely affected by an increase in the cost of gasoline.

We look forward to your prompt reply.

Sincerely yours,
Patricia Potts

New Guidelines for IRS Probes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service computer spat out a name: Armstrong, John A.

Then came a list of suspicious sounding documents:

"Memo SA Johnson Re Gambling Juice."

"ST Mob Union Link in Nevada Loan Bared."

"CTRB Hoodlums Open Travel Agency."

This is how the IRS, for the past year and a half, has kept track of thousands of citizens that agents suspect might become targets of tax investigation.

Worried that the system may have been abused, the IRS suspended it. Officials insist the system was not operating secretly, that its files will not be destroyed and that it will again be operating —as soon as new guidelines are issued.

The little-known Information Gathering and Retrieval System was set up in May, 1973, to collect information on persons who might be involved in "potential tax law violations." The word "potential" sets the system apart from the investigation of those already suspected or charged with tax law violations.

Agents in many of the IRS's 58 district offices were assigned full-time to chasing down potential violators. A description of the system was published in the IRS Manual, a volume available for public inspection.

On Jan. 22, IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander temporarily halted IGRS. Officials say there were three reasons:

—Vaguely worded guidelines led to confusion among agents over what material could be filed. The data is supposed to be "tax related," but the manual says documents may include "information items." As one official said, "that could mean a lot of things to a lot of people."

—Fear of repeating the experience of the Special Services Staff, another IRS investigatory arm that compiled files on thousands of "radicals," including congressmen and peace groups with the aid of computer lists supplied in 1969 and 1971 by the Justice Department. The unit was scrapped last August and a spokesman concedes "the stuff it collected wasn't very useful and in retrospect it's easy to say we shouldn't have done it."

—A trend toward giving the public greater access to government files, especially in cases where false information could damage reputations.

Officials at IRS headquarters in Washington are taking "a sniff, a looksee" at some of the IGRS files, an official said. To date, "there aren't any items in there that shouldn't be," the spokesman added.

The Philadelphia Bulletin reported the files included such items as drinking and sexual activities of local politicians. "We don't know that," a tax official countered, saying such information would be counter to the guidelines.

The spokesman said IGRS is "geared to gangster-type stuff" such as news accounts of criminal actions for checking at tax time. "Guys who take payoffs often don't report them on their tax returns," he said.

The spokesman also said innocent items in the files can be misleading. "If a special agent reads a newspaper and sees a story about a bribery scandal in his town, he's going to clip it out. That's the kind of item that's going to go in the file.

"Now suppose the story also goes into other aspects of his life. Is it reasonable to ask us to take scissors and cut this out? You know, you stick the whole clip in."

There is no indication how long the IGRS suspension will last but the system will probably be revived, with its files intact.

"There is no thought that we're going to stop gathering information on potential tax law violations. No way," the spokesman said.

"But we want to be satisfied that we know what is being done and how it is being gathered before we start up again."

LIFE

Fashions Are Making News Again

By: Dorothy A. Narel
LIFE Editor

Paris, Rome, New York — they're all taking fashions again. The collections are geared for the Spring/Summer Seasons of 1975 and almost anything goes.

In Rome, Roberto Capucci is designing clothes to be collected like art objects. His hemlines are remaining not far over the knee, he has belted his waistlines and, at a time when roomy, bulky clothes are being shown by everyone else, this Italian designer is making fitted blouses and jackets. For evening, Capucci is showing long tailored gowns of checked cotton gingham with attached boleros and overskirts of chiffon.

Fabiani, reported to be one of Italy's best tailors, showed a white spring coat with big bell sleeves released from horizontal tucks on the shoulders. It had a wide black patent leather belt.

And would you believe! . . . . after persuading fashion-conscious women to switch from miniskirts to pants and then to midcalf lengths, designers are trying out the mini again.

It's now called "The Skimp" and its the genius of Halston in New York. Italian designers are taking a stab at above-the-knee skirts in some of their high fashion collections but the general trend, we understand, is for more midcalf skirts coupled with very high-heeled shoes with pointed toes.

In New York, Gay Pauley of UPI reports manufacturers will be working toward holding the line on prices. They are going to offer more quality and better designs and won't try to push a radical new silhouette for the coming fashion season. Good news!

As for skirt lengths, Vincent Monte-Sano, president of the New York Couture Business Council, says east coast designers are holding to "just covering the knee." And he doesn't think women are ready to swing back to Halston's "Skimp" or the mini-skirt.

While New York manufacturers and most designers are keeping economics in mind, Bill Blass and Geoffrey Beene are going the other way. They cater to customers who can afford $400 and more per design. Stores, on the other hand, are predicted to buy closer to the season and need. They are not about to overload their inventories.

In Paris, designers are trying to keep up with the economic squeeze and are bringing back the "tube." It's a look that belonged to the 1960's — narrow, straight skirts.

Designers Emmaneul Ungaro will show the "tube" look with skirts shortened to just under the knee. He adds short, curly hair and pale colors out of the 1930's.

Yves Saint Laurent is showing custom clothes that are shorter, just under the knee, with a slender A-line look of a sweater. Salon workers have been reported as saying Laurent's clothes have no bust or hips.

The straight, long and severe fashion is also the idea coming from Designer Angelo Tarlazzi at the House of Jean Patou but Marc Bohan, designer for the House of Christian Dior, apparently refuses to join the tube trend. His fashions will not impose straight and short dresses on women.

Spring colors are going to be bright. It seems everytime the state of the world is depressed, bright colors come to the fore. This year's range will include red, orange, turquoise, marigold and emerald. In the pale colors we'll see Mauve, pink, chamois, apricot, bois de rose and iced mint. Stripes will be seen everywhere also.

SHELLEY FARKAS

To Participate in National Exhibition

Shelley Farkas, New Paltz-based artist, has been invited to participate in a photographic exhibition entitled "Women Look at Women." The exhibit, which is being sponsored by the Connecticut Council on the Arts, will be shown in the museums and college galleries of Connecticut and will then tour nationally throughout the coming year. The opening will be on Feb. 9th at the Lyman Allyn Museum, in New London, Conn. Ms. Farkas' work was selected by a panel headed by feminist leader and editor of Ms. Magazine, Gloria Steinham. More than 600 artists from the United States and Canada submitted their work for consideration for the exhibit. The now 66 artists who comprise "Women Look at Women" include such well-known photographers as Robin Morgan, Naomi Savage and Eve Sonneman.

Shelley Farkas, a graduate of State University College at New Paltz, is skilled in other artistic areas such as painting, sculpture, drawing and the crafts. She has exhibited her work widely on the East Coast, including the Schenectady Museum, The Museum of Modern Art, New York City and The Floating Foundation of Photography. In 1973 Ms. Farkas was art director for a film short which won first place in the New York Film Festival. She is currently working as art director on a full length feature film for Scene East Films Inc., entitled "Tapestry," Ms. Farkas will be exhibiting her work at "Image Space," a photographic gallery in Middletown, during the month of April. She will then present new works at the Warren benedek Gallery, New York in September.

Annual Husbands' Night Is Scheduled

Y-Wives will have the annual Husbands' Night on February 6 at 7:30 p.m. at the YWCA. The covered dish supper is under the direction of Mrs. Fred Schoonmaker, president, and Mrs. William Devine, vice-president. After the supper, members and guests will participate in Casino Night.

Y-Wives will present an important program on February 20 at 8 p.m. at which time Mrs. Walter (Patricia) Yaeger, program director for the Ulster County Unit of the American Cancer Society, will be guest speaker. The program will also feature a film concerning uterine cancer and there will be demonstrations of self-examingation for breast cancer. This program has been opened to all members of the YWCA regardless of age. Members are also encouraged to bring guests. Refreshments will be served after the program and there is no charge for admission. Due to the importance of this program an early announcement is being made for the convenience of those wishing to attend. There will be more detailed publicity in February.

At the January 23 meeting and auction, Mrs. E. Ronald Rifenburg served as auctioneer, assisted by Mrs. William Barnes. Hostesses included Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Robert Hughes.

Poster Contest Set For OCS Students

The Conservation Committee of Tongore Garden Club announces its Poster Contest for students of the Onteora Central School.

According to Mrs. William T. Golden, committee chairman, there will be three cash awards: one for the winner in the elementary school, one for the winner in the junior high classes, and one for the winner in high school. The subject is "Don't Litter."

All posters will be on view in the Olive Free Library, West Shokan, in May.

If enough students are interested, the Tongore Garden Club plans to make this an annual event. Information about entering the contest may be obtained from the Onteora School Art Department.

Square Dance Saturday

The Do-C-Do Square Dance Club of Poughkeepsie will present Bob Paris, club caller, at Saturday's dance in Hagan Spackenkill School, Poughkeepsie. Dancing will be from 8 to 11 p.m.

Final performances for the classic drama are slated for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 31 to Feb. 2, at Woodstock Town Hall. Curtain time for all performances will be at 8 p.m.

Gourmet Cooking Course to Start

The DePuy Canal House Tavern in High Falls, awarded the coveted Four Stars by Craig Clairborne, of the New York Times, will be the site for a credit-free course in Gourmet Cooking being offered by Ulster County Community College.

The course will meet on five Wednesday nights, starting Feb. 5, at the Tavern which Claiborne called "one of the most interesting suburban restaurants in America."

In the course, John Novi, the tavernkeeper, will be host to the students, and Richard van Horne, the tavern chef, will give instructions in the art of preparing classic 4 to 5 course meals. Emphasis will be placed on the restaurant's expert attention to unique color displays and arrangements of textures and tastes.

At the completion of each session, participants will be invited to sample the menu prepared.

Further information about the course can be obtained by calling the Office for Continuing Education at the College.

Free to Leave Him, and She Should

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been living with Don for two years. I am 22 and he is 25.

I hear girls at the office talking about bringing covered dishes to family gatherings, going to his folks' or hers for dinner, or for the weekend, or the holidays, and I get more heartsick every day.

I've begun to realize what marriage is all about. It's really belonging to someone who oves you enough to want to make you a member of his family.

Don is always telling me what a wonderful arrangement we have, and how much he loves me.

The past several months, I've been asking myself: "If it's so wonderful and he loves me so much, why do we lie, sneak around and let people assume we are married?"

Why doesn't he ask me to marry him, and become a member of his family? They don't even know I exist.

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: Because he doesn't want a legal commitment. And if he is able to get all the benefits of marriage with none of the responsibilities, who can blame him? I am assuming he didn't kidnap you. You agreed to live with him without marriage. You walked into it of your own free will, and you're free to walk out. Why don't you? I think you're ready.

DEAR ABBY: Is it unmannerly for a girl to wear a hat or a knitted covering on her head when she's inside a building?

Our principal always asks the girls and boys both to remove their hats when they are in school.

He said that someone should write to DEAR ABBY and ask about it, and if you said it was all right, he would ask the boys only to remove their hats when they're inside the building.

He said he didn't believe that anyone would write to you and ask. Well, I'm wirting.

OKLAHOMA STUDENT

DEAR STUDENT: Customs, rules and traditions are made up by those in authority, and they differ drastically. (In some houses of worship it's considered disrespectful to wear a hat In others, the head must be covered. In some schools, all that's required of the students is that they come with the HEADS on . . . and what's ON their heads is no consequence.)

Your principal should know the rules of your school—and so should you. Obey the rules. If they're unfair or pointless—change the rules.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, but never thought I'd be writing to you.

Now, my problem: A close relative of mine was recently married. The wedding was out of state so we didn't attend, but we sent a wedding present that cost over $100.

Today, I received a letter from the bride's mother. Along with it, she sent five pictures of the wedding. She wrote, "The pictures are $1 each. You can square it with us later." In other words, "pay up."

Abby, I think this is in very poor taste. In fact, I have never heard of "selling" wedding pictures to close relatives.

Should I return the pictures? (I don't really want them.) Or should I keep the pictures and send her five dollars? Or just keep the pictures and not send anything?

STUNNED

DEAR STUNNED: Return the pictures with a note thanking her for "sharing" them with you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "RED": ou're right. I was unfair to redheads. I should have said: "Never tell a redhead OR A BLONDE, OR A BRUNETTE that you love her unless you intend to marry her." (And you can throw in those ladies with the new two-tone jobs, too.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

YW Offers New Class

The YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, has announced the start of a new class in Backgammon, to be offered for six weeks starting Tuesday Feb. 11 at 7 p.m. Joe Ohnikian will instruct; Dr. Kurken V. Kirk will be consultant.

Backgammon has regained popularity in the last few years. It is a simple game to learn but becomes increasingly complex in its varieties of selecting the best combination of dice moves to provide a victory.

The course will offer the necessary background to understand the objectives, rules, strategy, and pitfalls of the game. Participants should bring a backgammon set or share one with another participant.

Instructor, Joe Ohnikian, has previously taught a variety of courses including memory improvement and chess. He is an avid backgammon player with tournament experience. Consultant to the course, Dr. Kurken V. Kirk, who first learned the game in Armenia, recently won the MidHudson backgammon tournament.

More information regarding fees may be obtained by calling the YWCA, a member agency of the United Fund. Y membership is required for class participation.

Big Sister Fund-Raising Project

The Big Sister Program in Ulster County is embarking on a fund-raising project, proceeds of which will enable the organization to carry on its work.

Big Sisters is a voluntary organization that matches a woman with a girl who needs a friend. Volunteers are always needed. Those interested in obtaining details about the program and in investing time and energies should contact Gloria Jean Sparks, executive director, at the Ulster Avenue address.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®

...it tells you how

Back in October 1974, I stated in this column that: "If you live in Canada or the northern third of the U.S.- or plan to visit that part of the continent this winter—it's time you were introduced to cross-country skiing."

"Yes," agreed Paul K. Stanton, of Hamilton, Montana. "And I can tell you how to completely outfit yourself for the sport on less than $20.00!"

Paul has worked this miracle for several of his friends by showing them how to buy a set of heavy touring skis (from the 30's, 40's or 50's) at a Goodwill or Salvation Army store for only $3.00 to $10.00. Satisfactory cable bindings often come already attached to such skis. If they don't, however, Paul scouts around for good used ones . . . and, if that doesn't turn anything up, he—finally and reluctantly—invests in a pair of new touring-type cable bindings.

"Anyone who says you need special boots to go cross-country skiing is probably trying to sell footwear," comments Stanton. "Almost any good-quality hiking or work boots, treated with a wax-type leather conditioner, can be made to work quite well in most cable touring binders."

Naturally, Paul recommends used touring poles (again, from the Salvation Army or Goodwill) . . . and several layers of lightweight woolen clothing, a cap or hat and gloves from the same source.

"All it takes to get started in this sport," sums up our low-cost ski-touring expert, "is some ingenuity, an eye for bargains, a few dollars and a desire to move through the winter landscape without destroying its peace."

For further tips on outfitting yourself for cross-country skiing on less than $20, send 10c and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS in care of this newspaper, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Reprint No. 214, CROSS-COUNTRY SKIING . . . THE LOW-COST WAY.

UCCC Grad Is 'Miss Hope' '75

KINGSTON

A 23-year-old Kingston Hospital nurse, who has a history of cancer in her family, was recently selected as the Ulster County American Cancer Society Unit's Miss Hope for 1975 and will compete in the statewide contest to be held in Rochester in March.

She is Faye E. Fogal (pronounced as in gal) — and a dedicated, talented and attractive gal she is.

An Ulster County Community College graduate, who starred in four theatrical productions while a student at the college, playing a nurse in "The Crucible" and as leading lady in "A Man for All Season," Miss Fogal, in her address before a luncheon meeting of Cancer Society officials and judges emphasized the hope that exists in the treatment of cancer.

She told of three women in her family who have experienced the disease and needlessly "took it as a death sentence." She also told of her first cancer patient who never sought medical help until a lump in her breast took on enormous size.

"That woman took her cancer as a punishment," Miss Fogal said, telling of how she tried desperately to convince her that it was indeed not punishment, but a disease. Referring to chemotherapy (use of drugs) and other treatments of cancer, she emphasized that more cancer cures are closer each day and that no one should lose faith. "It is not the length of time left to live but rather the length of time given to living," she suggested.

A native of Long Island, Miss Fogal has lived in this area for five years and enjoys sewing, walking and 'smiling!'

An admitted fresh air fiend, she also finds other person's smoking distasteful and readily admitted that she refuses to permit other nurses joining her for a hospital cafeteria break to light up in her presence.

The only contestant in this year's pageant, because illness prevented expected competition from a Benedictine Hospital nurse, Miss Fogal was designated at a luncheon meeting at the Holiday Inn, arranged by Mrs. Madeline Wendrow, executive director of the Ulster County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Tony Bell, chairman of the first Miss Hope contest in Ulster County nine years ago, served as master of ceremonies and two former Miss Hope winners were in attendance, Diane Demskie Beck, 1973; and Donna Stephano, 1974; both Benedictine nurses.

Also attending were: Robert C. Randall, crusade chairman; Albert Teetsel, crusade treasurer; Kenneth Osterhoudt, Woodstock crusade chairman; Mrs. Pat Yeager, program director for the Ulster County Unit and Albert Cawein, publicity.

Also: Bell, Randall and Mrs. Lynn Mulvaney who were to have served as judges. Dr. Harri Janssen is president of the Ulster County Unit.

Miss Stephano, the 1974 Miss Hope, said she found the experience to be "very exciting and rewarding and one in which she met many wonderful people" in her travels throughout the county and at the state pageant.

The Ulster Unit of the American Cancer Society has scheduled its campaign kick-off dinner for March 19.

'Hedda Gabler' . . . Women Return

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

WOODSTOCK

While we would not suggest that militant feminism challenged Performing Arts of Woodstock to restore women to their rightful place in the drama hierarchy, PAW has done just that with its current production of "Hedda Gabler."

"The Godfather," "Papillon," "Serpico," "The Sting" — men, men, nothing but men! But, with "Hedda Gabler," PAW has brought women back center stage.

And Hedda, as conceived by playwright Henrik Ibsen in this classic drama, is a woman to reckon with

"It doesn't cost much to keep me — I'm inexpensive," says Mrs. Elvsted, who has just left her sheriff husband for a drunken writer. "That's stupid of you," Hedda replies, giving the audience its first insight nto her personality.

And a complex personality it is. Her husband, George, assures us that Hedda "could not live like a grocer's wife." She admits that, of numerous swains, she chose the professorial George because "I danced myself out — my time is up." In a moment of self-analysis, she confesses, "My only talent is boring myself to death." Another time, she insists, "I WON'T HAVE RESPONSIBILITIES."

But Hedda is far more complex than that — insidious enough to destroy the lives that touch on hers; wild and violent enough to stop at almost nothing in the process. Living a life of social constraint, she escapes that life in one final, violent, passionate act.

PAW does well by Ibsen and his heroine. Through its ingenious director, Paul Cooper, and a fine ensemble of actors, the plot, structure, and story emerge brilliantly. And the canny Bob Jacobson has designed one of PAW's best sets ever — a set with the "heaviness" necessary to carry the brooding quality of the play.

As Hedda, Julia Callahan has not made the mistake of other actresses who have played the role. Her Hedda is no attempted universal put-down. While her face can radiate bitchiness at twice the speed of sound, she has not turned Hedda into someone preoccupied with herself to the point of sheer foolishness.

John LeFever, as Hedda's husband, demonstrates his usual charm and skill; gives the remarkably underplayed performance required of a man who does very well at "collecting and ordering," but has no inkling of the passions that seethe in his wife.

Edith LeFever is very good at providing moments of laughter and humor as the old maid aunt of Hedda's husband. Martin Henderson, as Judge Brack — a gentleman bent upon a triangular arrangement with Hedda and her spouse, is particularly adept in his scenes of repartee with Hedda.

As Eilert Lovborg, the doomed genius who once courted Hedda, David Eckstein brings particular luster to those scenes in which he must convince the audience that the only virtue he has left is the forbearing acceptance of his own vices. "I wanted high praise," he says, as the drunken wastrel, "so I wrote a book that everybody could agree with." And, in the doing, he has written a best seller.

Kim Herald as Mrs. Elvsted, the sheriff's wife who loves Lovborg, brings conviction to her role; does several highly affecting monologues. And Eleanor Schlomann as Berta, the maid, is properly "put upon" by her mistress; reminding us by her demeanor that not all masters and servants in drama share the paradoxical equality and intimacy of Don Quixote and Sancho Panza.

PAW's revival of "Hedda Gabler" is totally arresting. Well worth seeing, it will be presented again at Woodstock Town Hall on Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 and 2 at 8 p.m.

Explorer Post 122 Members Cited

KERHONKSON

Two honor awards were presented to members of Explorer Post 122, a group of younger men and women, during the annual installation dinner of the Kerhonkson-Accord First Aid Squad recently at Rubin's Maple View Hotel in Kerhonkson.

Those honored were:

Jeffrey Turner of Accord and Joseph Previll of Kerhonkson.

Both Turner and Previll were cited for their arrivals at the scene of two different and very serious illness situations and proceeded to perform the vital first aid needed when even seconds counted, the citations said.

It was the first time the First Aid Squad made such an award and it was announced that a similar award will be presented annually in the future to members of the Post who perform outstanding service for humanity.

"The Kerhonkson-Accord First Aid Squad is very proud of this very active group of fine young people. Their dedication to the purposes of first aid service to their community is the mark of a true first aider," a squad spokesman said.

A class in First Aid will be given at the Kerhonkson-Accord First Aid Squad Building, Route 209 in Kerhonkson, Wednesday, Feb. 5 at 7:30 p.m. This course will be taught along the new guidelines of the American Red Cross and will welcome anyone interested in first aid for squad membership, home training for first aid until an ambulance service can be obtained and for those who need to renew existing cards.

It is hoped that everyone who possibly can will attend, learn what first aid is really all about and stand beside the dedicated Squad membership and the young Explorers. It is not necessary that anyone come from the Kerhonkson-Accord area. The class is open to anyone, near and far, in the whole valley.

103 Supper

Klondike Derby Winners

KINGSTON

Some 120 Boy Scouts turned out for the recent annual Klondike Derby and a day of competition.

Each patrol built a sled and these were pulled from city to city, depicting a journey through Alaska.

The Scouts traveled from Yukon to the Polar Caves and at each stop took part in some form of competition such as first aid, compass work, tree identification and pioneering.

This competition, divided into two categories — one for time competition and the other for performance in the various events, produced these winners.

The Jive Owl Patrol from Troop 63, sponsored by the Olive Fire Department, was the first patrol to finish.

The Road Runner Patrol from Troop 9, sponsored by the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Kingston, took first place in the events.

Charles Blanschan was the Klondike chairman.

Pack 32 Honors Several

SAUGERTIES

The Webelos Den conducted the opening ceremony for the December holiday meeting of Cub Pack 32 at Atonement Lutheran Church in Saugerties.

Den 2, under the leadership of Mrs. Budik and Mrs. Heller, gave a skit titled Happy Holidays.

Honored during the awards ceremony were:

David Frick, Scott Budik, George Heller, David Jabs, Vance Holmes, Bill Ostoyic, Jeff Hemphill, Jim Hoffman, Tom Cole and David Clarke.

Holiday refreshments were served following the meeting.

The Pack Committee also met to make plans for the Blue and Gold dinner to be held in February.

Rosendale Office To Open

ROSENDALE

The office of the Rosendale Town Clerk, Main Street, will be open Saturday, Feb. 1, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon weather permitting for the issuance of dog licenses.

Mrs. Catherine O'Leary, town clerk, reminds owners and harborers of dogs that there are village and town dog ordinances and dogs running at large are in violation of the law. Unlicensed dogs picked up can be redeemed for a $5 fee and license charges.

Dog licenses should have been obtained by Jan. 1, however, residents have until Feb. 10 to get licenses before summons are issued.

Licenses may be obtained by mail if self-addressed stamped envelope is included with application and fee. Licenses may be obtained in person at the town clerk's office during regular hours 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Will Pancho Be Referee?

An Official Dispute

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — At long last Jimmy Connors was on the scene today for his $100,000 winner-take-all tennis match with Rod Laver and he backed up his manager in a dispute over Pancho Gonzalez as referee.

The 22-year-old Connors, top money-winner in tennis last year with $285,490, said he was committed to Bob Howe, an Australian-born London resident, as referee, and Gus Lanna, a Forest Hills, N.Y., official as umpire.

"I have nothing against Pancho," he said. "Something should be worked around so everybody's happy. That would be great."

Connors said he felt it would be "embarrassing" if Howe and Lanna were not selected because they were promised the positions.

Howe is already here and Lanna is en route, Connors said.

Bill Riordan, Connors' manager, insisted the match would be canceled if Gonzalez did not withdraw as referee.

Gonzalez at first exploded when he learned of Riordan's position but later indicated he would step down if both Connors and Laver felt he should.

The match, billed as a classic struggle of "age versus youth," is scheduled to start at 1 p.m. EST Sunday in a new halfmillion dollar tennis pavilion at Caesars Palace casino-hotel.

Caesars is putting up the hundred grand and has contractual authority to designate the officials so long as they are agreeable to both Laver and Connors, according to match chairman Sidney Gathrid.

Gonzalez obviously did not want to give in too readily to Riordan, but said, "If the players want a change, I'd be happy to step out of the picture."

The 36-year-old Laver said he knew of no prior commitment to Howe and Lanna as officials and sided with Gonzalez. He indicated, however, he had nothing against the pair although he said he did not know Lanna.

Connors, who had been expected here Monday, did not arrive until late Wednesday, when he took his first workout on the composition surface at the indoor court.

He practiced against a young lefthander from Rancho La Costa, Harry Fritz. He offered no explanation for his tardiness.

Connors was asked by a reporter if he thought he might have to "catch up" with Laver in becoming accustomed to the court.

"I don't think so," he said. "I won a tournament on the same kind of floor last Sunday at Birmingham."

The former UCLA star refused to be drawn into a controversy over his asserted personality differences with other tennis players.

"I haven't feuded with anybody," he said. "Maybe they've feuded with me. I just go out and do my best every time and maybe some of them don't like that."

Connors is the challenger. He asked his manager to arrange the match with Laver. When asked why, he replied, "I've never played him. I just wanted to play him...you know, he's 36 and he didn't play very much last year...."

Year of Trojan in Pro Football

The University of Southern California won the national championship this year and now will send a record number of its players into the pros.

The annual National Football League college player draft ended Wednesday and when it was all sorted out, 14 Trojans had been selected by the 26 clubs in 17 rounds.

The total was one more than the previous high of 13, set by Ohio State in 1971. Ohio State tied its own mark with 13 selections this year, Nebraska had 12 and Maryland 11.

Southern Cal had four players taken on the second round alone—Anthony Davis (New York Jets), Charles Phillips (Oakland), Bill Bain (Green Bay) and Art Riley (Minnesota). Richard Wood (Jets) was taken on the third round, Allan Carter (Cleveland) on the fourth and Jim Obradovich (New York Giants) and Pat Haden (Los Angeles) on the seventh on Tuesday.

On Wednesday, six more Trojans were selected, including J.K. McKay, son of USC Coach John McKay, by Cleveland on the 16th round. Others included Otha Bradley (San Diego) on the 10th, Marvin Cobb (Cincinnati) on the 11th, Dale Mitchell (San Francisco) on the 13th and Steve Knutson (Atlanta) and Bob McCaffrey (Green Bay) on the 16th.

There were 442 players selected, 244 offensive and 186 defensive. Seven kickers and five punters also were chosen. The leading individual position was running back, with 75 taken.

The Big Eight Conference was the leader with 44 players chosen in the drafting, which last two minutes short of 21 hours.

Most of the top talent was snatched up on Tuesday's opening seven rounds and there were very few major items Wednesday. There was one major trade involving Baltimore and Washington and the Jets, who brought on an NFL ruling against raiding the World Football League last season, dipped into the ranks of the rival league again.

The Colts dealt two veterans —10-year guard Glenn Ressler and wide receiver Cotton Speyrer—to Washington for the Redskins' 12th round pick this year and 16th next season in what seemed like a steal for Washington.

There is some speculation, however, that the deal may be attached to the Redskins' releasing assistant Ted Marchibroda recently to become the new head coach of the Colts.

The Jets grabbed off one of the premier receivers in the WFL in James Scott, a 6-foot-0, 185-pounder who played with the Chicago Fire last season. Scott, described by Fire Coach Jim Spavital as, "a possible second Paul Warfield", has indicated that he will attend the Jets' rookie testing session Saturday. He underwent knee surgery last season after ranking as the No. 1 receiver in the league in mid-season.

Last October, New York signed veteran center Howard Kindig when the Jacksonville franchise folded and the NFL, fearing possible anti-trust action from the WFL, immediately instituted a ban on signing its players until the NFL season was over. Dallas squeezed in punter Duane Carrill, also from Jacksonville, just before the ruling went into effect.

Two well-known Notre Dame players—quarterback Tom Clements and All America guard Jerry DiNardo—were bypassed in the draft. Several NFL club sources felt both players were too small for their positions. Both, however, are expected to sign on as free agents.

From 'Zilch' to Big Money

ROTONDA, Fla. (UPI) — A woman who many regard as the best volleyball player in the U.S. but who has earned "just zilch" in sports the past four years is the champion of the fist women's superstars competition.

Mary Jo Peppler, of El Paso, Tex., took home the first winners' trophy and prize money totaling $49,600 Wednesday in competition so close that it wasn't decided until the final event —a tricky obstacle course.

Miss Peppler, who recently turned pro in the newlyestablished International Volleyball Association, took first places in rowing, the softball thrrow and basketball shooting, and came in second in the halfmile bike race. She finished with 41 points, tops in the 11woman field.

"I just don't believe I won it," said the tall and atractive brunette. "I've never been luky in my life."

Lucky may have been the word for it in the last event. Basketball's Karen Logan needed only a second place to clinch the winners' trophy, but drew a penalty when she lost her grip on the horizontal bars.

Although Miss Logan, captain of the Pink Panthers women's basketball team, finished second overall with 38 points and $13,8000 in prize money, including first-place finishes in tennis and the 60-yard dash, almost was not quite good enough. After the obstacle course penalty, she wandered off into a parking lot and wept.

Diver Micki King, who was also within striking distance of first place until she knocked down a crossbar on the high jump for a penalty on the obstacle course, finished third. With first places in swimming and the 440-yard dash, the Air Force captain came in third overall with 36 points and pocketed $8,600.

Miss Peppler said her money earnings in sports has been so poor she hasn't even had to file income tax for the past four years.

"The amount of money I've made up to now is just zilch," said the 30-year-old volleyball player, who recently signed a contract as assistant coach and player with the El Paso-Juarez Sol team in the IVA which forbids her to state how much she makes.

Miss Peppler also said the superstars program, which pits athletes in events outside their own specialties, will encourage other women to go into professional sports.

However, she doesn't think the gals shoudl be allowed to compete against the guys.

"In the skill events we could probably do better, but the men ran faster than we could," she said. "I don't think we could really compete against them."

Skiing champion Kiki Cutter placed fourth with 34 points and $3,400 and Laura Ching, the surfer from Hawaii, finished fifth with 24 points and took home $2,400.

Ching 'Wiped Out'

ROTONDA, Fla. (UPI)—Hawaiian surfer Laura Ching, who rode the waves in the nude for a major magazine, says she got "mentally wiped out" in the first women's Superstars games.

The shapely daughter of professional wrestler Lord James Blears finished fifth in the unusual competition, which was won Wednesday by volleyball player Mary Jo Peppler.

But she was happy with the $2,400 in prize money she pocketed.

"It's going to help out a lot," said Laura, the 23-year-old graduate of Punahou High School who was the first and only woman chosen to compete against 29 of the world's top surfers in the 1973 Professionai Surfing Championships.

Laura placed second in swimming and rowing and was the early points leader.

"I was queen for a day," she said.

She also came in second in the final event, the obstacle course, and posted a total of 24 points, 17 behind the leader.

She got points with a fourth-place finish in tennis and fifth in the 60 yard dash. She was disappointed she didn't place in the half-mile bike race.

"I've got strong legs, but I didn't play it right," she said. "I wasn't used to being in that fourth lane."

Laura said she didn't get physically tired during the two-day competition, but added, "I was mentally wiped out. Even when I as eating I couldn't relax, thinking about the next event."

Laura says she doesn't think girls should compete against the men but added "I think it would be neat to team up with a guy in relays."

Ms. Superstar

Volleyball professional Mary Jo Peppler admires her trophy Wednesday after winning the Women's Superstars competition. The 30-yearold El Paso, Tex., resident hasn't had to file income tax for the four years, but she will this time with prize money of $49,000. (UPI)

A Bill to Eliminate Reserve Clause

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. John F. Seiberling, D-Ohio, introduced a bill in the House of Representatives Wednesday to eliminate the reserve clause which professional sports teams use to prevent athletes from changing teams.

Seiberling said the reserve clause and other rules and practices by owners of professional teams to confine players to one team "constitute group boycotts and illegal restraints of trade which are violations of the federal antitrust laws."

He said his measure "would prohibit a web of invidious practices which owners and officials of various sports have instituted to prevent athletes from contracting freely for their skills and services."

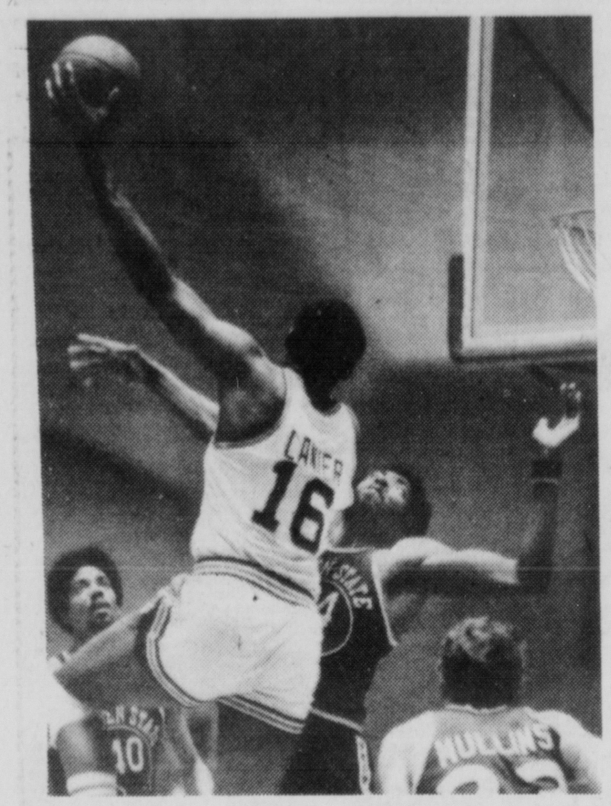

The Supreme Court ruled in 1972 that it was up to Congress to alter antitrust laws to prohibit the reserve clause which St. Louis Cardinals baseball star Curt Flood challenged in a court suit.

Seiberling's proposal would outlaw reserve clauses, which are contained in professional contracts stating that the team reserves the right to a player's services until he is traded or given an unconditional release.

Seiberling said his bill also would outlaw blacklisting or a team refusing to deal with a player who wants to switch teams; the practice of requiring the second team to compensate the first when a player plays out his option and signs with a new team; a standard contract used by all legaue teams which establish rules a player must comply with before playing with any team, and the practice of giving to a team drafting a new player the rights to the player's services forever.

"The indefensible intention of these rules and practices is to forbid free and reasonable negotiations between players and teams," Seiberling said, "and at the same time to punish owners who dare acquire the property of other owners."

Seiberling is a member of the House judiciary antitrust subcommittee which would take first action on the measure.

Wide-Open Battle In Atlantic Coast Loop

By United Press International

When Atlantic Coast Conference coaches predicted at the start of the season that there would be a close battle for the league title, they were not merely being cautious about defending national champion North Carolina State.

Eleventh-ranked North Carolina, with Mitch Kupchak and Brad Hoffman hitting 21 points each, moved into the lead of the ACC with a conference record of 5-1 after whipping Wake Forest 101-91 Wednesday night.

Second-ranked North Carolina State holds a 4-1 ACC record while Maryland and Clemson are 4-2.

The Tar Heels went into the second half against Wake Forest with a 49-48 lead on two Hoffman free throws after the buzzer.

North Carolina then outscored Wake Forest 31-12 in the first 9:14 of the second half to run up a 20-point lead, 80-60, and was never seriously threatened afterwards. The closest the Deacons could come after the Tar Heel rampage was 96-87 with just under two minutes remaining.

Kupchak also led North Carolina rebounding with nine and Hoffman, who scored 15 of his points in the second half, led in assists with eight.

Skip Brown led Wake Forest with 32 points—22 in the first half—and nine assists.

Elsewhere, Western Kentucky defeated 10th-ranked LaSalle 91-87, Niagara edged Cornell 71-70 in overtime, Pittsburgh scored a 70-61 overtime win over Temple, Penn State clipped Syracuse 88-84, Nebraska beat Oklahoma 73-58, Kansas State ripped Iowa State 108-93, St. Bonaventure routed St. Francis (N.Y.) 108-89 and Kansas dumped Colorado 81-59.

Trailing most of the game and by as many as 12 points, Western Kentucky went ahead to stay 87-85 on a field goal by Wilson James with 1:13 left. Odemns' basket made it 89-85 with 25 seconds remaining. But then Charlie Wise scored for LaSalle and it was 89-87 with 17 seconds left.

Odemns was charged for walking with nine seconds remaining but Britt intercepted the LaSalle throw-in and dribbled in for the final basket of the game with four seconds left.

Odemns scored 33 points for the winners and made 14 of his 18 shots in the game with 21 points coming in the second half.

Still Hope for Little Man

By UPI

There's still hope for the little man in the National Basketball Association when Kansas CityOmaha can beat Milwaukee four times in six meetings.

The Milwaukee Bucks have 7-foot 2 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, of course, while the Kings' chief game-winner is 6-1 Nate Archibald.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 43 points Wednesday night but Archibald and Jimmy Walker took over down the stretch to give Kansas City-Omaha a 106-102 victory. It was the Kings' fourth victory in six meetings with the Bucks.

Archibald snapped a 99-99 tie on a drive that resulted in a layup over Abdul-Jabbar and a foul with Nate making the free throw for a three-point play. Archibald scored 28 points and Walker 26 for the Kings.

The Philadelphia 76ers defeated the New York Knicks 98-92, the Los Angeles Lakers beat the New Orleans Jazz 112-108, the Detroit Pistons beat the Golden State Warriors 93-90, and the Seattle Supersonics topped the Phoenix club, 99-85, in other games.

76ers 98 Knicks 92

Fred Carter scored 25 points, including two baskets in the stretch, to give the 76ers their victory. Earl Monroe had 18 points for the losers while Phil Jackson and Mel Davis each had 13.

Lakers 112 Jazz 108

Gail Goodrich scored 34 points and the Lakers rallied in the second half for their win. Pete Maravich was high scorer for the Jazz with 32 points.

Pistons 93 Warriors 90

George Trapp hit a jump shot with 10 seconds left and John Mengelt sealed the Pistons' win with a pair of free throws to lift the Pistons to their win. Bob Lanier scored 30 points for Detroit while Rick Barry had 25 for the Warriors.

SuperSonics 99 Suns 85

Fred Brown scored 24 points leading four players in double figures as the Super-Sonics downed the Suns at Phoenix. The Suns made only 35 of 101 field goal attempts as they dropped their second Pacific Division game in two nights.

Leafs Pulling Away In NHL Division IV

Toronto is 10 points ahead of the California Seals in the National Hockey League's Division IV today—and, at least for the moment, the Maple Leafs' recent frustrations are forgotten.

Riddled with dissension and curfew violations on a recent Western swing, the Leafs beat the Seals 4-2 in Toronto Wednesday night. They made it look easy by running up a 4-0 lead going into the final period when Larry Patey and Ron Houston scored for the Seals.

Gary Sabourin's second tally and goals by Ron Ellis and Blaine Stoughton within 65 seconds of each other in the second period paced the victory.

Barry Wilkins and Vic Hadfield scored in the second period to lead the Pittsburgh Penguins to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks; Tom Lysiak's goal with 1:35 left gave the Atlanta Flames a 4-4 tie with the Kansas City Scouts and Denis Potvin's goal gave the New York Islanders a 4-3 win over the Minnesota North Stars in other Wednesday night games.

Larry Pleau scored the winning goal as the New England Whalers beat Baltimore, 4-3, and Al McDonough and Russ Walker scored two goals each as the Cleveland Crusaders downed the Phoenix Roadrunners, 6-2, in World Hockey Association games.

Falcaro Named

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The late Joe Falcaro of New York has been elected to the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame and will be inducted in ceremonies at Dayton, Ohio March 13.

The ABC board also voted Hall of Fame status in the meritorious service category to two former ABC officials, secretary emeritus Frank K. Baker, 67, and Eli Whitney, the organization's first public relations manager. Whitney founded the ABC Hall of Fame in 1941.

Also to be honored March 13 will be the late Billy Welu whose election on the national ballot was announced last week.

Falcaro, who died in 1951, was an early national match game king and was described as "one of the sport's earliest and greatest showmen."

Yankees Sign Five

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees today signed five players, with Elliot Maddox the lead man.

Maddox came to terms quickly for an appropriate raise.

Red Hook 46-24 Winner To Reach Final Round

MIDDLETOWN — Red Hook High's girls basketball team, champion of the Ulster County Athletic League, rolled over Tri-Valley, 46-24 at Orange County Community College Wednesday and advanced to the finals of the first Section Nine girls basketball tournament.

The Raiders will face Rockland County champion Pearl River, a 4432 winner over Warwick here Wednesday, in the title game which will be played at OCCC at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Red Hook lost its first game of the season, but it's been uphill ever since. Tri-Valley was the 15th consecutive Raider victim.

Elenie Opffer again led the attack, this time with a 20 point performance. She maneuvered easily through the T-V zone and along with teammate Cathy Amrod boosted the winners into a commanding early lead.

Tri-Valley, which brought a 13-2 record and the Western Sullivan League title into the contest, couldn't stop the Raider offense and couldn't generate its own. Mary Lou Terbush, T-V's leading scorer, settled for only six points, and that was a team high.

Red Hook jumped out to a 12-4 lead in the first quarter and just kept pulling away. T-V turnovers and Raider rebounding fueled the romp.

The UCAL champs will face a 17-1 team in Pearl River. The Pirates stopped a 15-game winning streak by Warwick in their semi-final battle.

Red Hook won the Northern Division of the UCAL then topped the South's Pine Bush, 48-34 to take the league crown. Opffer led the winners with 16 points while Pine Bush got 13 from Linda Boock.

U.S. Skaters Surprise

OAKLAND (UPI) — A young California couple pulled off the surprise of the first day of competition in the U.S. figure skating championships at the Oakland Coliseum Arena , but form held up in the other events as defending champions led after compulsory competition..

Tai Babilonia of Missiion Hills, Calif., and Randy Gardner of Los Angeles were the surprise front-runners in the senior pairs event after the short program going into tonight's final free skating. Defending champions Melissa Militano of Dix Hills, N.Y. and Johnny Johns of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., were in second place.

Wednesday night, skating to music from "West Side Story," the California teen-agers performed an error-free routine. One of their six required moves in the short program was a unique variation of a basic lift. They ended up in a back-toback position as the crowd of 3,500 thundered its approval. The other couples did the same lift conventionally facing forward.

But the defending champions did not seem too worried even though Johns faulted on a jump. That mistake allowed the 1974 champs to fall behind in the scoring, which accounts for 25 per cent of the total.

New Hope for Kovalev

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Vladimir Kovalev, the reformed bad boy of Russian skating, can come good today by winning the first-ever singles title by the Soviet Union at The European Figure Skating Championships.

The Moscow student, who was suspended for a year in 1973 for his heavy drinking, leads his compatriot Sergei Volkov in the overall standings after the compulsory figures and short program.

Kovalev, who celebrates his 22nd birthday in three days time, has mellowed from his year in cold storage and is favored to clinch the gold medal in today's final category, which carries 40 per cent of the overall marks.

Volkov, runner-up to East Germany's Jan Hoffmann in last year's World and European Championships, is a relatively poor free skater and is not expected to recapture the lead he obtained in the opening compulsory figures.

John Currie, the third-placed Briton, is the only other competitor in with a sporting chance of depriving the Russians of the gold. But the 25year-old Londoner will have to produce a far better performance than his effort in Wednesday's short program if he is to become Britain's first male champion since Graham Sharp in 1939.

If either of the two Russians mount the winner's rostrum, it will be the Soviet Union's second success of the championships.

On Wednesday, Irina Rodina and Alexander Zaitsev fulfilled predictions by winning the pairs title for the third successive year and will be going out to complete another hat-trick in the World Championships in Colorado Springs in March.

Dome Almost Complete

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Louisiana Superdome is 94 per cent complete and officials said Tuesday it will open about May 1 with a 30-day free visit period.

Superdome officials also said they planned to meet next week in New York with Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to discuss several matters involving New Orleans' desire to have a professional baseball franchise.

New Head Coach

EAST STROUDSBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Dennis Douds, 33, was named head football coach Wednesday at East Stroudsburg State College.

Douds, an assistant coach for nine seasons and a graduate of Slippery Rock State College, replaces Charles Reese who resigned earlier this month.

Joshua to Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Outfielder Von Joshua was acquired by the San Francisco Giants Wednesday on Wednesday from the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The 26-year-old Joshua, the 1972 Pacific Coast League batting champion, hit only .234 for the Dodgers last year.

Sox Sign Forster

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox announced Wednesday the signing of Terry Forster, the 1974 American League Fireman of the Year.

The left-handed, hard throwing relief pitcher led the American League with 24 saves and won seven. His 31 points led the American League for the fireman honor. Forster, 23, has four years major league experience and last year had a 3.62 earned run average. He was the 10th White Sox player signed.

Relief Pitcher Must Finish for 'Save'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A relief pitcher must now finish a game to gain credit for a save.

The rule regarding relief pitchers has been altered and two other regulations dealing with specifications for bats and for errant throws by a pitcher which end up out of play have been strenghened by the Official Playing Rules Committee, it was annouunced today by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Under the new relief pitching rule, a pitcher must be in the game at the end to get credit for a save in addition to qualifying under at least one of the following.

a) he enters the game with a lead of no more than three runs and pitches for at least one inning; or

b) he enters the game with the potential tying run either on base, or at bat, or on deck (that is, the potential tying run is either already on base or is one of the first two batsmen he faces); or

c) he pitches efffecively for at least three innings.

This year's rule differs from last year's in that the 1974 regulation only specified that a pitcher must find the tying or winning run either on base or at bat or he must pitch at least three effective innings and in either case preserve the lead. It was possible for more than one pitcher to qualify under those provisions. In that case it was up to the official scorer to credit the save to the pitcher he judged to have been the most effective—or not to credit a save at all.

A new provision has been added to bat specifications since some players have begun using "cupped bats", or bats with indentations in the end. Under the new provision, "an indentation in the end of the bat up to one inch in depth is permitted and may be no wider than two inches and no less than one inch in diameter. The indentation must be curved with no foreign substance added."

Another rule strengthened at the winter meetings in New Orleans makes it possible for umpires to eject any pitcher who is found to have a foreign substance on him or in his possession. The previous rule had allowed for a warning prior to ejection.

The Rules Committee also clarified the rule with regard to advancement on overthrows when the ball goes into the stands or the dugout. The old rule states that a batter is entitled to "one base, if a ball, pitched to the batter, or thrown by the pitcher from his position on the pitcher's plate to a base to catch a runner, goes into a stand or a bench, or over or through a field fence or backstop. The ball is dead."

The newly approved ruling adds:

"When a wild pitch, or passed ball, goes thru or by the catcher, or deflects off the catcher, and goes directly into the dugout, stands, above the break, or any area where the ball is dead, the awarding of bases shall be one base. One base shall also be awarded, if the pitcher while in contact with rubber, throws to a base, and the throw goes directly into the stands or into any area where the ball is dead.

"If, however, the pitched or thrown ball goes thru or by the cather or thru the fielder, and remains on the playing field, and is subsequently kicked or deflected into the dugout, stands or other area where the ball is dead, the awarding of bases shall be, two bases from position of runners at the time of the pitch or throw."

Four Dates Set At New Paltz

NEW PALTZ — New Paltz Baseball Association has advanced its registration period, with four dates announced for registration in the hall of the New Paltz Middle School.

The dates are: Saturday, Feb. 8, 1 to 5 p.m.; Sunday, Feb. 9, 1 to 5 p.m.; Tuesday, Feb. 11, 7 to 9 p.m.; Wednesday, Feb. 12, 7 to 9 p.m.

The registration is for boys baseball (8-17) and girls softball (10-16). A parent or guardian must sign the registration form. Questions may be directed to the New Paltz Baseball Association, P.O. Box 314, New Paltz or the secretary, Maureen Hasbrouck.

To Sponsor Racing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Norton Company of Worcester, Mass., will again sponsor Penske racing for 1975, it was announced Wednesday.

Artie's Top Handlebar To Remain Undefeated

KINGSTON

There remains only one undefeated team in the YMCA "A" League — Artie's Bar, following a 109-94 thumping of The Handlebar. The winners are now 2-0.

It took a total of 221 points to settle The Outrigger-Acker's Bar contest, with Outrigger prevailing 115-106 in overtime.

Bob Adams scored a career-high 28 points and hauled in 28 rebounds to lead Handlebar and Harry Brink tossed in 28 points, but Greg Kohls was on fire again for Artie's, this time with 47 points. Jumpin' Joe Uhl rimmed 29 for the winners who led 44-43 at half-time.

Outrigger ran away from Acker's (14-5) in the overtime after the teams wound up in a 101-101 deadlock in regulation time. There was scoring heroics all over the floor.

Hunters Set All-Time Record

ALBANY

New York State hunters harvested an all-time record total of 103,303 white-tailed deer during the 1974 big game season, Commissioner of Environmental Conservation Ogden Reid has announced. The 1973 deer take was 75,379.

The Ulster County buck deer take also jumped from 1,848 in 1973 to a record 2,337.

Delaware County again led all counties in deer take with a record harvest of 11,680.

Statewide, the top 10 counties for total deer taken were: Delaware, 11,680; Steuben, 8,985; Allegany, 8,053; Otsego, 6,004; Chenango, 5,865; Cattaraugus, 5,439; Chautauqua, 3,801; Sullivan, 2,978; Chemung, 2,800; Columbia, 2,696.

Ulster County ranked ninth in total buck take with its 2,377. To counties in order were: Delaware, 5,971; Steuben, 4,411; Allegany, 3,752; Cattaraugus, 3,492; Otsego, 3,091; Chenango, 3,010; Sullivan, 2,913; Chautauqua, 2,575; Ulster and Columbia, 1,775.

Delaware County also claimed the top buck take per square mile with 5.3 and Chemung was second with 5.3. Ulster was well down the list with a 2.5 take per square mile.

The Southern Zone season, which includes Ulster and Delaware, was extended permanently beginning this year, but this longer season was not a big factor in the high buck take. Previous three-week seaons had produced unspectacular buck takes.

Deer takes were up this year in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine, as well as New York, indicating high deer populations, ideal weather during the entire season, more party permits and high cost of living all may have contributed to the increased New York take.

Gunners took 60,832 bucks of the overall 1974 total. Archers also set a record with 3,206 deer of both sexes on about 90,000 archery stamps, the record sales reflecting increased interest in archery hunting.

Special hunts were held in several areas with the Dutchess area leading with 338 archery kills. Columbia County was next with 233.

Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The surging stock market, heartened by a further reduction in interest rates, opened higher today in continued heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which has gained more than 39 points this week, was ahead 0.39 at 706.35 shortly after the opening. Advances led declines, 203 to 75, among the 425 issues crossing the tape.

Turnover amounted to around 720,000 shares. Turnover thus far this week has totaled more than 91,000,000 shares, more than all of last week.

Before the market opened, Chase Manhattan, the nation's third largest bank, gave investors an added boost by lowering the prime lending rate it charges key corporate customers to 9 per cent from 9½ per cent—the lowest level for the prime since last spring. The prime rose to a record 12 per cent high in July and remained there until October. The high rate has kept many investors away from the market.

Barges Freighter Collide

CHALMETTE, La. (UPI) — Three oil barges and an empty freighter collided Wednesday on the Mississippi River creating a wall of fire that paralyzed 15 miles of the nation's longest inland waterway.

The barges burst into flames and broke loose from their tugboat to drift aimlessly down the river.

No crewmen on the freighter or the tug was hurt, but crude oil leaked from the damaged barges and caught fire, forming patches of flame that floated downstream dangerously close to 10 ships waiting at anchor. Paint on one of the ships was blistered by the heat.

The Coast Guard banned ship traffic until tugboats were able to snare the oil barges and five other barges they rammed and set free while out of control.

A heavy fog shrouded the river, complicating the fire fighting and recovery job and making the flaming barges an eerie spectacle from the bank.

"It looked like the whole river was on fire," said Steve Lemoine, the night clerk at a riverfront store. "As it got closer you could see flames shooting up in the air — pretty high, around 30 feet. It just kept coming down and getting bigger."

Witnesses aboard another tugboat said the tug Mamma Lee was pushing the three oil barges upstream when they collided with the frighter American Wheat. The freighter was damaged below the water line and a Coast Guard helicopter dropped pumps to her crew.

The Mamma Lee was not damaged but was missing for several hours. She was found against the west bank of the river several miles upstream from the collision site.

The loose barges and patches of fire on the water were a major hazard to ships in their path. Four crewmen from a Liberian vessel were so freightened by the approaching fireball they jumped overboard.

Three of them made it to shore but the fourth had to be rescued by a passing tug. He was near exhaustion when pulled from the water.

Yet to be determined was the extent of pollution caused by the accident. It was impossible to see how much oil was in the river because of the heavy fog.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION
356-01-0054 (SP457)

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to Article 15, Title 5 (Protection of Water) of the Environmental Conservation Law, and Public Law 92-500, Section 401 (a) (1), and Part 608 of the Official Compilation of Codes, Rules and Regulations of the State of New York for administering said Laws, Strelene Reality Corportion, % Colonial Sand & Stone Company, Inc., 1740 Broadway, New York, New York 10019 has filed an application with the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation at its Regional Office at New Palz where the application and published rules and regulations for administration of the law are available for public inspection.

The applicant requests that it be issued a permit to construct a breakwater in the Hudson River composed of sunken barges filled with rock and lashed together with cable. The proposed breakwater measures 530 feet by 36 feet and is to be situated approximately 140 to 185 feet off the west shore of the Hudson River. Each barge will be cross-laced at four sections of the main body with cable to help maintain the integrity of the barges. The proposed breakwater is located approximately 0.8 miles north of Kingston Point, City of Kingston, Ulster County, New York.

The applicant further request that the project by certified that there are no applicable Federal effluent limitations or other limitations or standards under Sections 301, 302, 306, or 307 of the Act.

Any person interested in this applicaton who wishes to become a "Party in Interest" in this proceeding in accordance with the published rules and regulations of the Department must notify the undersigned in writing on or before the 7th day of February, 1975, stating specific areas of interest.

Any Party in Interest will be eligible to be heard if a public hearing is ultimately held in connection with the application.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to Section 15-1503 of the Environmental Conservation Law, the Department of Environmental Conservation will cause a public hearing to be held in the Shandaken Town Hall, Route 28, Allaben, New York, on the 13th day of February, 1975, at 11:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, and to be continued from day to day as required, for the purpose of hearing all persons, waterworks corporations, municipal corporations or other civil divisions of the State of New York that may be affected by the execution of the plans of the Town of Shandaken, Ulster County, for the extension of the water supply and distribution mains of Phoenicia Water District into Extension No. 1 of that district and for the taking of a supply of water for this extension from the existing district sources, plans for which have been filed with the Department of Environmental Conservation at its offices in Albany and in New Paltz, New York, where the same are open for public inspection; and for the purpose of determining whether said plans are justified by public necessity, whether they provide for the proper and safe construction of all work connected therewith, whether they provide for the proper protection of the supply and watershed from contamination or provide for the proper treatment of such additional supply, whether they are just and equitable to the other municipalities affected thereby and to the inhabitants thereof, particular consideration being given to their present and future necessities for sources of water supply, whether they make fair and equitable provisions for the determination and payment of any and all legal damages to persons and property, both direct and indirect, which will result from the execution of the plans or the acquiring of such lands, whether they take proper consideration of other sources of supply which are or may become available and whether they provide for an adequate supply.

All persons, waterworks corporations, municipal corporations or other civil divisions of the State of New York, who have objections to the execution of said plans or wixh to be heard either in favor of or opposed to such plans, in order to be heard thereon, must file a notice of such desire to be heard in writing in the office of the Department of Environmental Conservation, Office of Hearing Officers, Albany, New York 12233, on or before the 4th day of February, 1975. Any objections so filed must particularly specify the grounds thereof.

In the event that no notice of appearance in opposition to the proposed project is filed within the time specified, the Department is authorized by statute to dispense with the public hearing, and to proceed to consider and examine the petition, maps and plans, proofs and arguments submitted in support of the proposed project, and thereafter to make the determinations and decision as required by statute. If the hearing is dispensed with, due and timely notice thereof will be given to the applicant.

NOTICE OF SALE
Index 74-1966

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale duly made and entered in the above entitled action and bearing date the 14th day of January, 1975, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the front door of the Ulster County Court House, 285 Wall Street, in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster and State of New York, on the 4th day of March, 1975, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon on that day the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and described as follows:

ALL that certain parcel of land with the buildings and improvements thereon erected in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster and State of New York, being part of Lot No. 5 of the Clifton Lots as laid down on a map of the same made by C. V. Quillard in 1868, and which is particularly described as beginning at a point on Chester Street seventy-six (76) feet from the northwesterly corner of Park and Chester Streets on the northerly corner of lands conveyed to Dennis Desmond and running thence northerly along Chester Street about thirty-eight (38) feet more or less; thence westerly at a right angle to Chester Street about ninety-nine and one-half (99½) feet to the rear of said Lot No. 5; thence southerly along the rear line of said Lot No. 5 about thirty-eight (38) feet more or less to a point at a right angle with the place of beginning on Chester Street; thence easterly along the lot conveyed to Dennis Desmond about ninety-nine and one-half (99½) feet to the place of beginning.

Reference is made to Map of G. W. Ludlum's Clifton Lots filed in the Ulster County Clerk's Office as Map No. 155 on May 26, 1886 in map book 21 at page 26 and Map No. 281 of Clifton Park Lots, lands of D. B. Stow filed in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on September 8, 1891, in Map Book 23 at page 47.

Being the same premises conveyed by Thomas Frank Carpino and Rosemary Carpino, his wife, to Keith R. Schlichter and Kathryn A. Schlichter, his wife, by deed dated October 29, 1968 and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on the same day in Deed Book 1219 at page 116.

SKS LAND SPECIALISTS, INC., Plaintiff,

ROBERT E. TALLON and MARILYN P. TALLON, Defendants,

SUMMONS AND NOTICE
Index No. 74-2120 TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS:

You are hereby summoned to answer the complaint in this action, and to serve a copy of your answer, or if the complaint is not served with this summons, to serve a notice of appearance on the plaintiff's attorney within thirty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service, and in case of your failure to appear or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Dated: January 24, 1975

To the Defendants Robert E. Tallon and Marilyn P. Tallon.

The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication pursuant to an order of Hon. Raymond J. Mino, Ulster County Court Judge, County Court of the State of New York, signed the 15th day of January, 1975, Kingston, New York, and filed on the 21st day of January, 1975, with the complaint in the office of the Clerk of the County of Ulster, at the County Court House, in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster and State of New York.

The object of this action is to foreclose a mortgage upon the premises described below, executed to Herbert W. Schrauer, Alfred R. Kunz and Paul C. Schrauer by Robert E. Tallon and Marilyn P. Tallon, and the said bond and mortgage were thereafter on the 12th day of March, 1973, duly assigned unconditionally to SKS Land Specialists, Inc., said assignment recorded on the 13th day of March, 1973 in the office of the said Clerk of the County of Ulster in Liber 1054 of Mortgages at Page 065. The said mortgage in the principal amount of $3,500, with interest from the 20th day of March, 1974, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the clerk of the County of Ulster, State of New York, on the 1st day of February, 1973 in Liber 1052 of Mortgages at Page 463.

The property in question is described as follows:

ALL THAT CERTAIN PLOT, PIECE OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate, lying and being in the Town of Wawarsing, County of Ulster and State of New York, known and designated as Lot #15, Section B on a certain map entitled "Miller Pond" prepared by Roy H. Pauli, L.L.S., and filed in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on May 22nd, 1972 as Map No. 728.

BEING a portion of the premises as described in a deed from Lena Miller to Herbert W. Schrauer, Alfred R. Kunz and Paul C. Schrauer dated April 12th, 1972 and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on April 18th, 1972 in Liber 1276 of Deeds at Page 679.

SUBJECT to the following restrictions:

1. Property shall be used for residential or agricultural purposes only, but not to exclude a small professional office.
2. No buildings shall be erected on any parcel nearer than sixty feet to the front line or nearer than thirty feet to any side or rear line. If two contiguous parcels are purchased they can be treated on one parcel for purposes of sideline setback.
3. No portion of the premises herein conveyed shall be used for the maintenance of a junk yard, a place for wrecking of automobiles or other machinery or for storage or sale of old automobiles, machinery, appliances, or building materials, or for storage of any unsightly or offensive material.
4. Any tent, shack, trailer, house trailer, or mobile home may be located on a wooded portion of a parcel only a minimum of 100 feet from the road, and in a location not visible from the road. It shall not be visible from adjoining parcels and be a minimum of seventy-five feet from either side line.
5. All lots shall be subject to utility easements as established or of record, or to be established of record, and to storm water easements and easements for the discharge of surface water, as now established or of record.

SUBJECT to building and zoning restrictions of the Town of Warsaring, if any. Subject to subdivision regulations of the Town of Wawarsing.

The Grantor reserves the right for his heirs, assigns and grantees to the unrestricted use of the pond known as Miller's Pond and reserves title to the deed of a said pond to himself, his heirs, assigns and grantees an unrestricted easement for ingress and egress to and from said Miller's Pond.

The grantor hereby gives and devises to the grantee the limited right to use the pond known as Miller's Pond for recreational purposes only, in common with all other grantees of such right, along with an unrestricted easement for purposes of ingress and egress to the said pond, such right to use such an access easement to run with the land forever and be binding upon any present or future successors in interest to the grantor, such future grantees, including any municipal corporation, to take subject to all rights of the grantee herein.

It is the intent of the above set forth that Miller's Pond be utilized for purposes that will protect the common safety, welfare and environment of its rightful users.

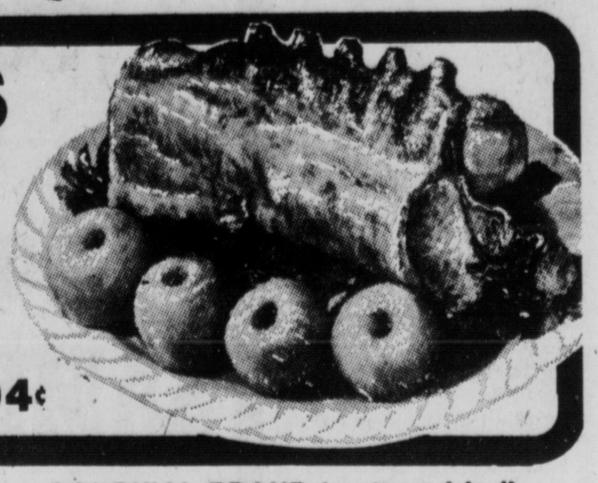

BEING the same premises as described in a deed from Herbert W. Schrauer, Alfred R. Kunz and Paul C. Schrauer to Robert E. Tallon and Marilyn P. Tallon dated January 22nd, 1973 and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on the 22nd day of January, 1973 in Liber 1293 at Page 410.

Listen Veteran . . . GI Bill Benefits Tax Free

KINGSTON

Tax Free—That's what benefits under the GI Bill are. And that includes pension and compensation payments, GI insurance proceeds and dividends, grants for wheelchair homes and specially equipped autos for severly disabled veterans and burial allowances. But, that interest paid on GI insurance dividends left on deposit with the VA is taxable, so be sure to include it in your state and federal returns.

Increase Your Earnings Power by training in a trade matched to your particular skills. If you served with the Armed Forces since Jan. 31, 1955, you can do it under the apprenticeship and on-the-job training programs with financial aid from the VA.

Sometimes a review of a discharge has made a veteran eligible for benefits which were originally denied because of a bad discharge record. If you think your discharge should be reviewed in light of new evidence or information let your local State Veteran Counselor assist you in reopening your case. Boards of Review have the authority to change, correct, or modify a discharge that was not the result of a general court-martial and direct the issuance of a new certificate in accordance with the facts presented.

Keep up with the times by stopping in to see Don Moore, State Veteran Counselor, at your local Veterans Counseling Center. There you will find the latest information on all veteran benefits. In this area the center is located at 300 Flatbush Avenue, UPO Box 527, Kingston, Monday through Friday 9 to 5.

Army News In Brief

Pvt. Wayne Van Warner of Saugerties, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Van Warner, has completed basic combat training at Fort Dix, N.J. After completing a leave at home, he reported to Fort Hood in Texas as a member of the Second Armored Division, a unit of his choice.

His brother, Donald Van Warner, also decided to join the Army and recently left for South Carolina.

Pvt. Van Warner, who attended Saugerties High School prior to his enlistment, joined the army with two of his friends—Frederick Quick and Kenneth Overbaugh, also of Saugerties. All three enlisted for duty at Fort Hood.

Sgt. Paul McCants of the Kingston and Ulster County Army Recruiting Office, reports that Sgt. Craig N. Barthelmas is currently en route to Kingston with his family and will join the recruiting team at the Broadway and Maiden Lane office.

The sergeant said that young men and women who are currently in high school should see their army recruiter now because job openings in service are closing fast.

For those who have college in mind, Sgt. McCants said, the latest word from the army is Project Ahead. A complete new program in cooperative education is available through the army.

In other army news:

Pvt. Orlando L. Santiago, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hopper of High Falls, has completed his eight weeks of training at Fort Dix, N.J.

Army Captain Henry J. Osterhoudt, son of Mrs. M. Frances Osterhoudt of Route 2, Accord, has completed a 36-week infantry officer advanced course at the Army Infantry School in Fort Benning, Ga.

Debre A. Churchwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Churchwell Jr. of Eltings Corners Road in Highland, has completed eight weeks of basic training at the training center for women in the army at Fort Jackson, S.C.

Thomas J. Campbell, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Campbell of Kerhonkson, has completed a 10-week ammunition storage course at the U.S. Army Missile and Munitions School, Redstone Arsenal, Ala.

On Recruiting Duty

KINGSTON

Spec. 4 Wayne R. Richardson of the 82nd Airborne Division will be working for the U.S. Army in Kingston for the next few weeks, instead of at his regular post with the division at Ft. Bragg, N.C., as part of Ft. Bragg's Unit and Station of Choice recruiting program.

Spec. 4 Richardson is the son of Mrs. Marie Richardson, formerly of Saugerties, and now of Lake Katrine. He will be talking to young men and women in the Kingston area about "joining the people who've joined the Army" at Ft. Bragg.

Spec/4 Richardson

Those who decide to enlist will be guaranteed a tour of duty at Ft. Bragg, one of the nation's largest military installations.

Under the Unit of Choice option, a person must enlist for a minimum of three years in either infantry, armor or artillery. Following basic training, he is assigned to the combat unit of his choice at Ft. Braff for at least 16 months.

The Station of Choice option also requires a three-year enlistment, but assignment in not limited to combat jobs. A person who enlists under this option may choose to be trained in such fields as electronics, aviation or military police work, and is assigned for at least a year at Ft. Bragg.

Spec. 4 Richardson can provide more information for persons interested in these programs. He can also describe what Army life is like at Ft. Bragg and some of the benefits of "Today's Army."

He can be contacted at the Kingston Recruiting Station, Broadway and Maiden Lane.

Spada Chagrined Over Carey Move On Authority

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

"A lot of communities in the state, including Kingston and Poughkeepsie, will be very disappointed if Gov. Hugh L. Carey is successful in scuttling the fledgling State Sports Authority," Ulster County Clerk Albert Spada said today.

Spada, who serves as a commissioner on the Authority, sees it as a vehicle in successfully implementing plans for the 1980 Olympics at Lake Placid.

He said that Kingston has been seeking an indoor hockey rink and Poughkeepsie, a civic center for the agency's consideration.

Referring to meetings in Poughkeepsie, New York City and other locales in recent months, Spada said that there are a lot of projects on the drawing boards and that he hopes that promises by Assembly leaders on both sides of the aisles to fight to retain the authority will materialize.

The authority was set up more than a year ago to help local communities build commercial sports and recreation facilities.

Carey indicated recently he would not seek any funds in his upcoming budget for the authority, citing poor market conditions for bonds and also his campaign promise to get rid of part-time commissioners and agencies.

The Sports Authority is headed by Edwin M. Schwenk, Suffolk County Republican Chairman. Schwenk is paid $25,000 a year. Two out of four other commissioners have also been named to $12,500 posts, one of which is held by Spada, who is also Republican County chairman.

To date, the agency has not generated any new sports projects although there have been some proposals for major stadiums in Suffolk County and Brooklyn and the authority has conducted feasibility studies for two ice rinks in the Buffalo suburb of Lackawana.

Spada also revealed that a dome stadium is being sought in Yonkers in Westchester County, that Binghamton wants a sports complex and Buffalo seeks a baseball field.

Republican Assembly Minority Leader Perry B. Duryea, the prime mover in establishing the authority while he was speaker of the Assembly, and Democrat Speaker Stanley Steingut have indicated they would contest any move by the Democratic governor to eliminate the agency.

Duryea said the authority should be given a chance "to prove itself."

A spokesman said it was unlikely that Duryea would give up the project, especially with Steingut's backing, "without a fight."

The governor's office would not confirm whether funds for the agency were in the budget to be presented to the Legislature Friday.

Transportation For Elderly . . . Solution Sought

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

Transportation—like housing, income and health care—is a problem that America's often forgotten senior citizens must cope with every day. But there are indications that at least some tentative steps are being taken in the Mid-Hudson Valley to improve the situation.

Pattern for Progress just recently recommended that the Dutchess County Office for the Aging establish an innovative, although experimental, "dial-a-ride" program that would provide transportation for the elderly throughout the county. The project, according to Pattern, would cost an estimated $211,000, with 35 per cent of that total in the form of a federal grant.

In its report, Pattern suggested that a similar program could be implemented here in Ulster County. But senior citizens and county officials have other ideas.

The Ulster County Senior Citizens Alliance, with assistance from the Ulster County Legislature's Program for the Aging Committee, has applied for federal funds to help purchase one 16-23 passenger mini bus that will be used for intra-county transportation of the elderly and the handicapped.

County officials and senior citizens met with the Department of Transportation and the New York State Office for the Aging in Kingston this week. They were told that the application has been received, that it may be processed within the next two or three weeks, but that a specific timetable simply is not available at this point.

Both county officials and local senior citizens recognize that one solitary bus isn't nearly sufficient to meet the transportation needs of the area's elderly residents. But, according to Alliance president Antoinette Tennant, it's a start in the right direction.

"We consider this a pilot project," she told the Freeman, "if it works out, perhaps we will be able to expand it at a later date. It's better to start with one bus and move ahead from there."

And Mrs. Tennant added that the "dial-a-ride" program under consideration in Dutchess County—which utilizes a dispatcher service to arrange individual bus transportation for elderly resident—isn't really feasible for an area as expansive and rural as Ulster County. "I think that a program like that would have a very difficult time functioning efficiently in Ulster County," she commented.

The one bus that the Senior Citizens Alliance hopes to start with will provide transportation between the outlying areas of the county and Kingston, as well as, perhaps, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie.

But as things stand now, the situation doesn't improve very much when the elderly do manage to reach Kingston. The city currently boasts a "mass" transportation system that consists of one solitary bus.

Help may be on the way, however. The city has applied for state and federal funds to help elderly and low income residents reach areas they don't normally have access to now.

But according to Alexander Yosman, coordinator of the Senior Citizen Advisory Council, there have been no attempts to date to coordinate transportation—specifically transportation for the elderly—in the city and county.

It is Yosman's opinion that future transportation services provided by the city and county could overlap, providing duplicate services in some areas and no service at all in other areas. He suggests that the county and the city and the senior citizens sit down and assess the transportationl needs for the entire area and then work up a unified plan to provide the best possible service for everyone involved.

But whatever additional transportation opportunities come out of these latest plans by Kingston and Ulster County, they are sure to be an improvement over what exists today. And the thousands of senior citizens who can't afford a car, who aren't physically able to drive and who don't have access to the few commercial bus routes in the county can be sure that progress is on the way.

Economics Is Denominator Of Railroad Lines Future

By WADE BURKHART

MONTGOMERY

An official of the U.S. Railway Association (USRA) told a gathering of leaders in government, business and industry in Montgomery Wednesday that the main, and nearly exclusive concern of the USRA in deciding which lines to recommend to Congress for inclusion in the Conrail system was economics.

Daniel Priest, director of regional affairs for USRA, said his agency was very concerned with making sure that no line included would be a "drag" on the system it will recommend to Congress to straighten out what he called "a mess" in the system of railways in the Northeast.

While the federal agency is concerned about the profitability of rail lines, the state apparently has some questions about the figures federal officials are using to determine that. Edward Rose, of the New York State Department of Transportation's (DOT) Railroad Task Force, announced that a meeting of railroad customers had been called for Feb. 5 at the Ulster County Office Building in Kingston.

Rose indicated that the main purpose of the meeting would be to find out if the rail customers were really using the railroads as little as the operators of the ines said they were.

Several of the people at the meeting said when they actually checked with the users of the railroads they got different, and higher, use figures than those provided to the USRA by the lines themselves.

The meeting was sponsored by the Wallkill Valley and the Southern Tier rail users, the chambers of commerce of Greater Newburgh and Orange County, and the Orange County government.

Priest did hold our a faint ray of hope to users of threatened lines—Orange County has three lines "under study" by the USRA and lines in Ulster County like the Catskill Mountain Branch are also threatened — in the form of government subsidy.

Priest said USRA studies had shown that the lines not included in Conrail could be kept going by the aid available on a 70 per cent federal and 30 per cent state share basis.

The aid will only be available for two years, but Priest said there were indications that Congress might extend this.

What rail users really want, however, is permanent security in the form of inclusion of their lines in Conrail, which will combine the Northeast's lines into a single entity.

Some tough talk was heard by Priest from Peter Garrison of the Orange County Planning Department, speaking for Orange County Executive Louis Mills. Garrison said his county would "under no circumstances" support any plan which represented less rail service to Orange County.

He spoke of the "domino effect" of reduced rail service, both from the rail's payroll reductions and through discouragement of expansion or his county's industries and relocation to Orange County by new industry.

Aaron Modanske, head of the Wallkill Valley Rail Users Association, has called eventual abandonment of rail lines "utmost disaster, a catastrophe."

"If the hue and cry is loud enough," he said Wednesday, "the will of the people will be heard."

Representatives from Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th Dist.) and State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn (R,C-40th Dist.) delivered statements, neither of them in favor of any rail line abandonment.

Priest said the first results of USRA studies will be delivered to the state DOT Feb. 10, and the full plan presented to Congress Feb. 26. Extensive public hearings will be held after that. "There's plenty of time to change the PSP (preliminary system plan) if you don't ike it," said Priest.

Heavy Winds Lash Valley

KINGSTON

A winter wind storm, huffing and puffing its way across the county last night, broke limbs and toppled trees, leaving power outages and a few blocked roads scattered throughout the area.

The Kingston City Engineer's Office estimated the winds at from 35 to 40 miles per hour at their height, and the Flight Service at Dutchess County Airport recorded winds from 15 to 35 knots from the northwest at about midnight.

Central Hudson spokesman Frank Bailey said the utility's crews had about 50 or 60 cases of trouble to work on, beginning at about 10:30 p. m. Wednesday, and by morning had reduced the outages to about 10. He said "several hundred" customers had been involved in the outages, and that crews would continue to work until full service was restored.

The most serious road blockage was a tree across the Blue Mountain Road in West Saugerties. It was reported by State Police to the County Highway Department, and the department said this morning that the trouble had been solved, although other crews were out working on trees in various locations.

The Sheriff's Department reported that their phones were "absolutely jammed" last night, with reports of the usual wind damage, and all units were on the road during the night. Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone suggested that people assemble themselves a "basic survival kit," especially including batteries for all the dead flashlights county residents had last night.

The City Police Department had reports of wind damage sprinkled across Kingston, with downed wires, tree limbs in the streets and street lights out. The Fire Department had to call in Central Hudson to shut off the current on some downed wires on Jansen Avenue that had caught fire.

A house trailer was reported blown over in the Town of Saugerties.

In the western part of the state, heavy rains accompanied the winds, and at least one drowning was reported. In Albany, the winds gusted to 60 miles per hour.

Windy weather is supposed to continue today, with a chance of snow tonight and a better chance Friday. So much for the January thaw. Winter seems back to playing its standard tricks.

On Religious Freedom in 1707

Child Abuse . . . Exchange Ideas

By CARL GRAHAM

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Department of Social Services held its required annual public hearing to discuss plans for its Childrens' Protective Service Unit (CPSU) Wednesday night in the Ulster County Office Building before an audience of 50 representatives of agencies dealing with problems of child abuse and abandonment.

The hearing served as an exchange of ideas for the representatives of the various school, medical, educational, law enforcement, and volunteer service agencies dealing with child abuse problems. Bernhardt S. Kramer, commissioner of social services, said that it was still too early to make a full evaluation of CPSU, created under a September, 1973, Legislative acct. Next year's hearing should permit comparisons, he said, because "we will have a full year to repot on."

Mrs. Kathy Weiss, CPSU director, then took over and spent most of the next 90 minutes fielding a wide range of questions from the audience. She said that CPSU investigated 156 family reports involving 291 chilfren during 1974. Of these, most were neglect cases, with 10 to 15 classified as abuse, which she defined as "severe injury to a vital bodily organ or permanent non-accidental injury."

Mrs. Weiss said that reports of alleged cases of child abuse or abandonment to the toll-free Albany number (800-342-3720) are referred back to her office, which has personnel available 24 hours a day to investigate.

Family Court Judge Hugh R. Elwyn described the process of handling child abuse cases. "Family Court is not a social agency," he noted. "We see cases only after a petition is filed."

Elwyn said that a summons to parents is first issued, and if ignored, is followed with a warrant. Parents are notified of the charges against them and their right to counsel, with the court assigning counsel if the parents cannot afford it, and a fact finding hearing is conducted. The child is represented by a "law guardian," a court-appointed attorney selected from a volunteer panel.

If the parents contest the case, a trial is held, with disposition at the discretion of the judge. Elwyn said every effort is made to keep the child in its home whenever possible.

Nancy Greenberg, representing Family of Woodstock, described the "hotline" 24-hour telephone service maintained by her group for the past two months. Counseling is available for parents who feel they are in danger of harming their child. Telephones at 338-2370 and 679-2485 are manned around the clock and Family works closely with other social service agencies, she said.

Harry Thayer, president of Radio Station WGHQ, offered one hour of his station's air time to the Department of Social Services to explain its program to the public at large. Thayer said he had learned much of value during the hearing and felt it should be made available to everyone. Kramer thanked him for the offer and said he would take advantage of it as soon as details could be arranged.

National Pilot Program at Ulster

STONE RIDGE

Ulster County Community College has been selected to serve as a demonstration college for the entire nation with a new two-year program to train students in water quality control monitoring.

The UCCC Board of Trustees Tuesday night approved the new curriculum for which the college will receive federal aid from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The program is scheduled to begin in September, pending state approval.

UCCC President Robert T. Brown said the designation of UCCC for the pilot program "speaks very highly for the fine reputation our college has earned."

Previously, UCCC received a $56,000 grant covering a three-year period, from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for the design of this Water Quality Monitoring curriculum under the directorship of Professor Richard B. Glazer.

The offering of the new program at Ulster is the start of a federal program to train approximately 7,000 technicians required to monitor municipal and industrial waste water treatment installations throughout the U.S.

The goal of the federal project has been to come up with a curriculum to provide trained technicians who will be able to monitor municipal and industrial waste water installation and also implement the National Pollution Discharge Elimination System. Under this latter federal program, the Environmental Protection Agency will issue permits after monitoring discharges.

It is expected that the two-year curriculum set up at Ulster will serve as a model for similar programs to be organized at other colleges throughout the nation under sponsorship of the federal agency.

Brown commended Glazer for developing the pilot curriculum.

Previously, Glazer, a Tillson resident, made outstanding contributions nationally in the BIOTECH program of the American Institute of Biological Sciences in Washington, D.C.

There he acted as associate director of a BIOTECH project to develop a teaching module to free the teacher from routine skill teaching and allow time to work with individual students to help inspire motivate and develop positive attitudes.

Pool Bids on Feb. 18

KINGSTON

The city will publicly open bids on the long-awaited swimming pool at Dietz Stadium on Feb. 18 at 2 p.m. in the mayor's conference room at city hall, the Freeman learned today.

Plans call for the building of the pool in two phases with the cost of Phase I—the pool itself and some landscaping—estimated at around $125,000. Overall costs are projected at $208,000.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig received verbal approval from the State Bureau of Outdoor Recreation on Friday and the city wasted no time in getting the bidding procedure underway.

State officials, who approved half the construction cost ($104,000) indicated additional monies might be available in the event bids come in high. "We have funded 50 per cent of legitimate and reasonable cost overruns," an official told the Freeman. "Overrun funding depends on the problems."

The other half of the money is being donated by the Andretta Family through its Andretta Foundation. The city is donating the acre of land at Dietz Stadium, renaming it Andretta Park.

The pool itself will be "olympic-sized," measuring 75 meters by 40 meters (about 81 by 45 in feet). It will have an "NCAA approved" diving area 13 feet deep at one end and taper to a depth of six inches.

Specifications for Phase II, the bathhouses, basket rooms and other supporting facilities, are still being reviewed by state officials.

As for the delays—the state approved funding for the pool in September of 1973—Koenig blames the state, contending that he sent (city) signed contracts to the state on Oct. 12, 1973 and did not receive a reply (in writing) until July 10, 1974. City Engineer Thomas Wickman completed specifications on the pool in December of 1973 although there were revisions through most of 1974 when the mayor decided to employe a Long Island pool consultant "to get the most for our money." The pool consultant would have gotten almost $20,000. That idea was dropped in late August.

State officials prefer not to get involved in any discussions about dealys at this point. "Sometimes these things take longer than expected," was the last word from the state.

Code Meet Scheduled

KINGSTON

All town supervisors, building inspectors and city and county officials have been invited to an informational eeting aimed at unifying various codes and permit and inspections systems throughout the county.

Sponsored by the Ulster County Department of Health, the eeting has been scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the County Office Building, according to Health Commissioner Dr. Bartholomew J. Dutto.

Speakers will include John Power, Director of Environmental Sanitation; George Radcliff, Kingston City building inspector and Donald Mekulik, Wawarsing building inspector.

Power will speak concerning the state pollution permit system and discussion will be held on such things as building codes,sewage permits, multiple residence codes and children's camps.

Abel Garraghan of Kingston; her mother, Mrs. Katherine Roach Abernathy of Kingston; two brothers: James Abernathy of Kingston and Charles Abernathy of Stone Ridge; and two grandsons: Daniel and Corin Gavitt of Rumford, R.I.

Funeral service will be held Saturday at 9:30 a.m. from the Gilpatric-Murphy Funeral Home, 176 Broadway; thence to St. Joseph's Church where at 10 a.m. a Mass of the Resurrectuon will be sung. The Rev. John Roach will be the celebrant. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Friday 2-4 and 7-9. Memorial contributions may be made to the Benedictine Hospital Building Fund or St. Joseph's Church Building Fund.

Another Slaying In Belfast

BELFAST (UPI) — The slaying of a Roman Catholic worker during a lunchtime chess game at a Belfast factory has threatened to set off a new round of religious warfare in Northern Ireland.

The British army increased patrols between Catholic and Protestant neighborhoods today in an attempt to head off a new outbreak of violence in Belfast.

In the Irish Republic's Portlaoise Prison, 55 miles south of Dublin, 17 outlawed Irish Republican Army prisoners stuck to a three-week hunger.

IRA sources said the republic's refusal to recognize the men as political prisoners has become the main stumbling block to resumption of the collapsed year-end truce in Northern Ireland.

The stepped-up patrols in Belfast followed the fatal shooting of 20-year-old Robert McCullough Wednesday in what police called a reprisal for the bombing death of a Protestant youth.

The assailants ordered the youths to kneel on the floor and then fired several shots, two of them into McCullough's head.

Police said the shooting apparently was in retaliation for the booby-trap death Sunday of a Protestant teen-ager outside of Belfast.

The slayings were the first revenge murders in Northern Ireland since the IRA declared a truce Dec. 22. The cease-fire ran out Jan. 16.

Police expressed fear that extremist Protestant groups might begin attacks in retaliation for IRA bombings and shootings during the past 10 days, sparking reprisals by the outlawed Catholic group.

The IRA has fought for more than five years to oust the British from Northern Ireland and unite the majority Protestant province with the predominately Catholic Irish Republic.

More than 1,148 persons have been slain in Northern Ireland and 52 killed in Britain since 1969.

Two Accused

KINGSTON

Two young city en were charged with third degree burglary early today after city police caught them allegedly emerging from the Remus Wholesale Co. building at 55 Furnace Street.

Arrested were Francis Ross Carey, 21, of 79 Liberty Street and John Palen, 24, of 108 McEntee Street.

Police said they were called to the building at about 1:40 a.m. Shortly after police arrived, Palen and Carey allegedly emerged from a window of the building and were placed under arrest.

Inside, police said they found several cartons of cigarettes taken from the rear of a truck piled on the floor.

Dogs Need Licenses

SHOKAN

Olive Town Clerk E. Lee Denman has announced that all 1974 dog licenses expired on Dec. 31 and that the animals will become delinquent when the grace period ends Feb. 10.

Licenses for all dogs over the age of six months should be obtained before Feb. 10 to avoid a penalty.

Applications for dog licenses may be obtained at the Town Clerk's office on Route 28 in Shokan. Applications should be mailed to the Town Clerk, Box 165, Shokan, along with a check for the license fee and a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Memoriam

In loving memory of Lewis DeGraff who died four years ago today, January 30, 1971.

At night a grave not far from here,
Where sleeps the one we can't forget,
The one we loved so dear.
We lost you four years ago,
And what it meant no-one will ever know.
Tis sad but true we wonder why,
The best are always first to die.
Sadly missed Wife Juanita & Family

The Cedar Hill Cemetery offers The Privilege and the Prestige of The Mausoleum

CONSTRUCTION RATES STILL AVAILABLE!

Prices for crypt space in the Cedar Hill Cemetery Mausoleum, pictured above, compare favorably with the total cost of in-ground interment. The Cedar Hill Cemetery, "The Cemetery Beautiful" of the Hudson Valley, offers the first Community Mausoleum in the area. Our Mausoleum to be constructed by the J.C. Milne Company, the nations leading builders of mausoleums. It will be constructed of Montifore White Polished Granite inside with Scotia Red Polished Granite outside. A spokesman for the J.C. Milne Company says our mausoleum is constructed to withstand any disaster of nature. Our Board of Directors are leading citizens, planning ahead for the future growth of Cedar Hill.

We invite your inspection of the construction of this new building, now in progress, at your convenience.

Chase Manhattan Drops Rate to 9 Pct.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chase Manhattan Bank today dropped its interest rate for prime business loans to 9 per cent from 9½ per cent, making it the lowest prime rate in the country.

The new Chase rate is the lowest since last spring when the interest charged by banks to their most credit worthy customers started a slow but steady decline after they peaked out at 12 per cent in July.

U.S. Trust Co. of New York dropped its prime rate to 9¼ per cent Wednesday but most big commercial banks were still at 9½ and some at 9¼ per cent.

First National City Bank of New York, whose floating prime rate often is a bellwether for the banking industry, normally announces changes in its rate at 10 a.m. Friday. Citibank's current prime rate is 9½ per cent.

Last week, Vice Chairman James J. Leary of Irving Trust in New York predicted the prime rate would fall generally to around 7 per cent by summer because of the recession and the slowdown in inflation.

Federal Reserve officials have said the statistical formula being used by Citibank and some other banks to set the prime rate actually could justify a drop well below 9 per cent —perhaps to 8¼ per cent.

But Citibank officials have been reluctant to cut the prime that fast for fear of encouraging a new inflationary rise in loan demand. Loan demand at major New York City banks has fallen by about $500 million a week for three consecutive weeks.

The statistical formula used by Citibank is based on the interest rates on various types of short loans including Treasury Bills. These rates have been dropping sharply.

Normally, changes in the prime rate take some time to affect consumer interest rates but this time lag has tended to shorten in recent weeks.

Catskills Meeting

SAUGERTIES

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) has invited all government officials and concerned citizens in Ulster County to participate in a conference which the Temporary State Commission to study the Catskills will hold in Saugerties on Feb. 15, at 10 a.m. at the Saugerties High School.

The idea of a conference was developed, Hinchey said, in a conversation he had recently with Alvert Hall, executive director of the commission. On learning that the commission was anxious to explain its findings to as many people as possible and outline the preliminary version of its recommendations, Hinchey said he suggested the possibility of a conference in Ulster County and offered to make arrangements to have his own town of Saugerties host the event.

Invitations have gone out to governmental officials throughout the county, and Assemblyman Hinchey said he has urged all who are concerned about the future of the Catskill region to attend."

"I'm sure people will find the Commission's presentation interesting and informative," Hinchey. "It is scheduled to make its final recommendations to the State Legislature by March 31 this year. Comments and suggestions from those attending the conference will therefore contribute valuable input to the final report."

Hinchey also said he had contacted the Catskill Center for Conservation and Development and he has been advised that the center will be represented at the event.

Police Make Arrest

NEW PALTZ

State police arrested Robert Martin, 21, of Delevan early today on the campus at the State University College at New Paltz on charges of loitering and sixth degree possession of a controlled substance, a felony. Police said more than a quarter of an ounce of alleged marijuana was onfiscated.

Martin was confined in jail in lieu of $100 bail following arraignment.

Meanwhile, four young Rensselaer residents were arrested in the Town of Hyde Park Wednesday night on charges of felony possession of LSD. Charged with fifth degree possession of a controlled substance were Paul Colvin, 21, his cousin, Robert Colvin, 20, Jay Reilly, 19, and Deborah Onderdonk, 17. They were arrested during a routine traffic check.

Colvin was confined in jail in lieu of $1,000 bail. The remaining three, who were passengers in the auto, were released in their own recognizance.

Woman Is Injured In Accident

KINGSTON

One woman was hospitalized and five others were injured Wednesday in a collision at the intersection of Clinton Avenue and Pearl Street.

Vehicles involved in the crash included a taxi, owned by GG's Taxi Service and operated by Lester Smith, 44, of 298 Clinton Avenue, and an auto operated by Lorraine Houghtaling, 27, of Route 6, Box 76, Kingston.

Rose Houghtaling, 43, of 146 Spring Street, was listed in fair condition today at the Benedictine Hospital. She was a passenger in the taxi. Two other passengers in the cab and the driver and two passengers in the second auto were treated and released at area hospitals.

No summonses were issued.

Safety Course

KYSERIKE

The three-hour driver safety course, required of all New York State residents prior to taking a road test, will be given at Rondout Valley High School Monday and Tuesday night, Feb. 3 and 4. Attendance at both sessions is necessary to obtain a certificate. The course will be held in Room 43, beginning at 6:45 p.m. each night. In order to take the course, a person must have a New York State permit and pay the registration fe.

Neville's Kin Found Strangled

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — The bound, shot and strangled body of the great nephew of former British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was found stuffed in a box inside a rented trailer Wednesday, police said.

Joseph Chamberlain, 34, was reported missing Tuesday by a fellow employe at Petty-Ray Geophysical, Inc., who said he did not meet a carpool.

The friend said he found a note on Chamberlain's door saying Chamberlain had to be hospitalized.

Chamberlain's superior at work, Thomas A. Russell, went to Chamberlain's apartment Tuesday afternoon and surprised a young man cleaning up the carpet. The man said he had been paid $10 to clean the apartment, but when Russell found blood on Chamberlain's bed the man fled through a window.

Police said a trail of blood led from Chamberlain's bedroom, through the apartment and out to the parking lot.

Detectives Wednesday traced a trailer in the apartment parking lot to Chamberlain, but believed it was rented by the same man who was cleaning the blood from the carpet.

Chamberlain, who immigrated to this country from England last September, was found inside a 27-by-27-by-50-inch box in the trailer. Police said the box was bought from Industrial Lumber and Box Co. by a man posing as Chamberlain.

The Harris County medical examiner's office said preliminary findings showed Chamberlain apparently was shot twice in the head and an electrical cord had been twisted around his neck. His hands and feet were bound with nylon rope.

Your Astrograph

For FRIDAY, Jan. 31,1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) One whose co-operation is essential to your immediate aims will throw some roadblocks in your path. Keep cool at all costs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be extra-careful if you're using tools today. Also, if you're working with another, remind him to work in a safe, orderly way.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're not especially lucky today when putting out cash for risky or chancy ventures. Buy nothing sight unseen.

CANCER (June 21-July22) Be extra-watchful of those in your charge and of your material possessions. Don't deal with persons you mistrust.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There's just a thin veneer over your patience and temper. A slight provocation could cause you to overreact unflatteringly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't spread yourself too thin where your resources are concerned. Your purse can't handle a spending spree.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Know when to back off today if you run into too much opposition. Discretion is the better part of valor.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could be taking on more responsibilities right now than you can handle. Ease up or you'll shortly be boxed in.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's to your best interest to refuse to aid one who's gotten to you before materially, then forgot you till his present dilemma.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you try to bowl over your opponents now, it will only stiffen their resistance to your aims. Be tactful, considerate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't blame your mistakes on others; rather, reexamine your own ideas. See if that's where the fault lies.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be spending more time today shouldering burdens and problems of others than you will solving your own.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

MUSICAL LIFE?: (Q.) Every time I hear good music I want to sing and dance. Plus I want to be an actress or movie star. Every time I'm alone I put on a record and dance and sing to it. Sometimes I pretend someone is with me.

I am 13 and my whole life is music. What do I do — Become an actress or movie star or what? Oh, yes. Every time there is a play or something, I HAVE to be in it or I get very upset. Please tell me what is happening to me. — Song Inside in Connecticut

(A.) Doing what you like to do and hoping to make a life's work of it is not abnormal. Continue to practice. Continue to try out for plays and musicals. Make friends of people with similar interests.

And also study music and drama and the dance seriously. Not everyone can be a movie star, but there are many possible careers in the fields you like in addition to being a singer or dancer or actress.

NERVOUS: (Q.) Last night I was talking to my girl friend over the telephone. She was baby-sitting. She was yelling and screaming and just about crying. It's because her friends are jealous of me and call her names. I have told her to tell them to get lost but she says she doesn't want any trouble.

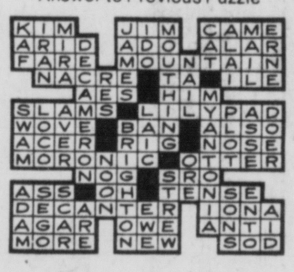

I am afraid she is going to have a nervous breakdown. All this teasing is wrecking her nerves. — Worried in Wisconsin

(A.) Teasing and name-calling do not cause emotional crisis in an otherwise well-adjusted person. Your girl friend must have some emotional conflict that is causing her distress. Encourage her to talk to her counselor at school about her troubles. Do not blame yourself for them.

South played quickly but unsuccessfully. At trick two he led a spade to his king. West ducked without batting an eye so South returned to dummy with a club; led a second spade and played his queen. West produced the ace and South had to lose another trump trick, a heart and the ace of diamonds.

"Nice play," said South. "But wouldn't you have felt silly if my spade holding had been five to the king-jack-ten?"

"Yes, I would," replied West. "However, you would have played the ten or the jack, not the king from that holding. In fact there was no holding where you would have played the king without having the queen in reserve."

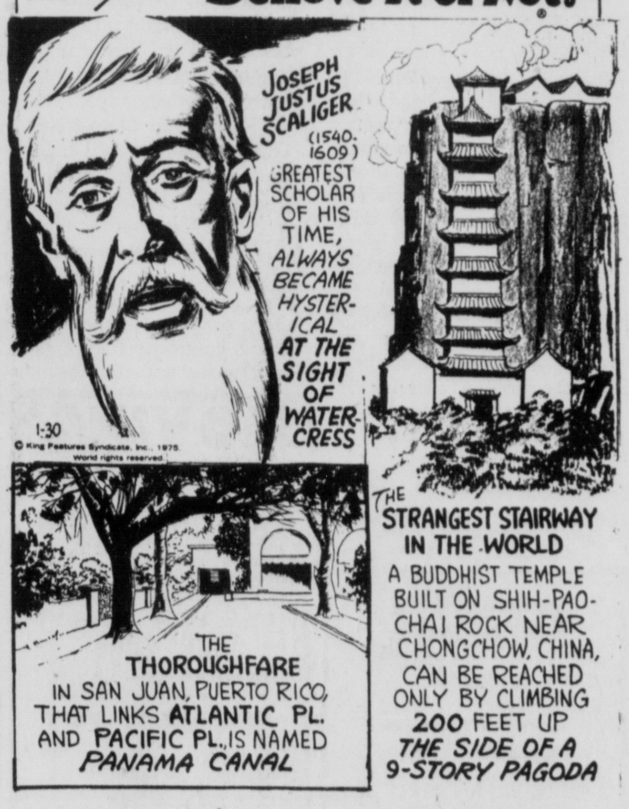

West was quite right. South's attempt to get West to play the ace was doomed to failure against any good player, once he played the queen it might have been a different story. Expert West might have decided that South held five trumps to the queen-jack and that a duck with the ace would lead to the ace and king falling together on the next trump lead.

Willing to Resume Peace Negotiations

Thieu Fears Collapse Without Aid From U.S.

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today the South Vietnamese government might collapse if the United States refuses to provide $300 million in new military aid.

Thieu, in his first meeting with a group of foreign correspondents in nearly two years, said his government needs the money to sustain the war effort.

The president also rejected Communist charges that he is the only obstacle to peace in South Vietnam and said he is ready to resume negotiations at once.

"There is a danger that South Vietnam will collapse if we don't get the aid," Thieu said, speaking rapidly in English. "The situation will be critical by the end of the year."

He said the $300 million aid request President Ford sent to Congress is the absolute minimum needed because equipment shortages have reduced military effectiveness 60 per cent.

Congress cut the administration's original aid request of $1.1 billion for the current fiscal year to $700 million. Ford asked Congress Tuesday for an additional $300 million.

Thieu said many South Vietnamese feel the United States has begun to waver in its support of his regime. He was quick to add, however, that any such assessment is premature.

Thieu apparently held the sudden news conference to bolster his sagging image abroad, particularly in the United States, as Congress neared debate on the Indochina military aid bill.

Opposition leaders have accused the South Vietnamese president of governmental corruption and have demanded his resignation.

American news services were excluded from the session with representatives of nine news organizations, but UPI obtained a resume of Thieu's remarks at the 90-minute breakfast session.

Relaxed and expansive, Thieu reponded with an emphatic "no" when asked if he would accept a coalition government with the Communists.

Thieu said his government has repeatedly tried to implement the P a r i s peace agreement, but North Vietnam is continuing to try to overthrow him by force.

The president said he is ready for immediate negotiations without preconditions and he would accept any government elected in a "free and open" vote.

Sadat Feels Peace in the Mideast Is Possible

By U P I

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko plans to fly to Syria Saturday for talks with government leaders and will arrive in Cairo Monday.

Gromyko's visits will precede the diplomatic visit to the Middle East planned by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who reportedly will arrive in the second week of February.

Diplomatic sources in Damascus and Cairo said Wednesday that Gromyko was invited to both capitals to receive government briefings on the stand they will take in the negotiations with Kissinger.

The presence of the Soviet official in the region, just before Kissinger, also was aimed at creating the impression that the Soviet Union was actively participating in Middle East peacemaking efforts, the sources said.

While both Moscow and Damascus are suspicious of Kissinger's step-by-step approach to the Middle East crisis and would rather see the Geneva peace talks resumed immediately, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has repeatedly declared support for Kissinger's diplomacy.

Sadat, who has accused the Kremlin of refusing to rearm Egypt, announced Wednesday in Paris that France will supply Cairo with Mirage jet fighters and other sophisticated weapons.

The Egyptian president also told a news conference at the end of his three-day state visit that peace is possible in the Middle East for the first time in more than a quarter of a century.

French officials said Sadat wanted $2.2 billion worth of military equipment. A joint Egyptian-French communique said France will supply equipment to "compensate in part losses suffered by Egypt" in the October, 1973, war.

Sadat refused to say how many Mirages he has bought, but a spokesman for French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said Franch will see to it the arms shipments to Egypt to not tip the balance of power against Israel.

In Jerusalem, about 1,000 youths opposed to Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory marched on Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's residence Wednesday. The crowd dispersed peacefully.

A Stunning Comeback For a Leader in Peking

HONG KONG (UPI) — The elevation of a top Communist leader to army chief of staff completes a stunning political comeback in China and gives the party unprecedented control over the armed forces, diplomats said today.

Diplomatic sources in Peking said Wednesday Teng Hsiaoping, vice chairman of the Communist party and vice premier in the government, had been named chief of staff of the People's Liberation Army.

The appointment gave the 70year-old Teng power in the three leading sectors of Chinese life and capped a dramatic return to power.

It effectively makes him the third-ranking official in China, behind Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai.

Teng had held positions of authority in the party from the 1920s, soon after its formation, and rose to the powerful post of party secretary general.

But when Mao launched the Cultural Revolution in 1966 in an effort to bring ideological purity to the party, Teng was purged and denounced. He became a "nonperson" whose name was never mentioned.

Two years ago, Teng was "rehabilitated" and began regaining power. He was restored to the party's policy-making Politburo a year ago, became vice premier under Chou and two weeks ago was named one of five deputy chairmen under Mao.

The Peking reports also said Chang Chun-chiao, another vice premier who came to prominence during the Cultural Revolution, has been named head of the political department of the army, which is thought to have about 3 million men.

The army and Communist party have long been rivals for power and diplomats credited Mao's ability to play one off against the other during the years as one reason for his success.

When the tensions of the Cultural Revolution exploded into violence, Mao called on the army to help restore order. He also enlisted army support when he purged the late Lin Piao as defense minister.

A year ago, Mao shuffled eight of the nation's 11 regional army commanders in what diplomats viewed as an effort to lessen their power bases and reduce army influence.

Teng has appeared to be in control of the government's day-to-day operation since Chou was hospitalized last April, reportedly after suffering a heart attack.

In his new post, Teng fills a vacancy existing since the disappearance of former chief of staff Huang Yung-sheng in September of 1971. Huang apparently was involved in the abortive coup attempt by Lin Piao.

PLO Opens Gates on 'Correctives'

DAMASCUS (UPI) — The Palestine Liberation Organization calls the small gray building on the outskirts of Syria's capital a "correction center" rather than a jail.

But inside the 12-foot-high walls at least five dozen Palestinian guerrillas are serving prison sentences for opposing the leadership of the PLO, the umbrella guerrilla organization.

The PLO opened the iron gates of its only known prison to reporters Wednesday to counter charges the guerrilla group is unwilling —or unable —to control dissident factions.

"We consider this place more a correction center than a prison," PLO spokesman Ziyad Abdel Fattah said.

He let the reporters see two men, identified as Shawkat Mohammed Nazmi and Youssef Khalil Saleh Hassan, sprawled on the floor of a 16-by-16-foot cell. There were 10 bedrolls in the cell.

He said a "revolutionary court" sentenced the men to 15 years of hard labor for attempting to seize a British airliner in Dubai last year. He said three other guerrillas are serving lesser terms for the abortive hijacking.

Fattah said Palestinian law condemns hijackings as crimes and provides for the death penalty when such an "illegal operation" leads to the death of innocent persons.

"When the PLO condemns criminal acts it does so not only with words but with action wherever it has the opportunity," he said.

The PLO spokesman conceded the five men are the only guerrillas in prison for hijacking. He said, however, the PLO is trying to get Arab governments to hand over other hijackers for trial.

Nazmi, who identified himself as a former member of the Al Fatah guerrilla group, told newsmen he was the leader of a five-man squad that had planned to hijack the British airliner last August.

He said the group was caught while trying to land a motor launch in Dubai on the night of Aug. 19, 1974. He said the gang had planned to make its way to Dubai Airport and seize the plane.

Nazmi said the squad had planned to demand the release of hijackers jailed in Greece. He admitted he made a "mistake" and conceded such "illegal operations" harm the Palestinian cause.

Nazmi and Khalil drew 15 years of hard labor. Two others received 10-year sentences and the third was jailed for seven years —all with hard labor.

Nazmi said hard labor isn't all that bad. He does some manual labor on construction sites and some agricultural work.

A Referendum Boycott

SEOUL (UPI) — South Korea's opposition forces today decided to boycott the forthcoming national referendum proposed by President Park Chung-hee to seek the people's verdict on the current constitution that backs his rule.

The major opposition new Democratic Party headed by Rep. Kim Young-sam held a meeting of ranking members and formally decided to refuse participation in the referendum, expected in mid-February.

"Our party decided to boycott the referendum, regarding it as a scenario to step up suppression in defiance of the people's desire to see the present constitution abolished and replaced by a democratic basic law," a spokesman said.

He said free choice by the people cannot be expected in the current situation.

He charged the government with creating a "terror atmosphere" by keeping political dissidents in prison, suppressing freedom of the press and questioning anti-government personalities.

A private organization, the Association of Christians Defending Democracy, issued a statement demanding that the referendum be canceled.

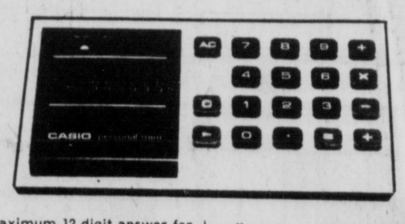

"A referendum held under the present system of suppression is meaningless," it said. "We flatly refuse it and all activities related to it."

Park proposed the referendum last Wednesday in an effort to put an end to a raging controversy over the constitution and his rule.
